Americans want a transparent process that counts every legally cast ballot.

House Republicans ✓ @HouseGOP · Nov 6, 2020

We must:

Count every legal vote.

Have a transparent process.

Ensure integrity in our election system.

This is about the integrity of our system.

Every legal vote must be counted, credible complaints of fraud and irregularities must be investigated, and legitimate legal challenges must be heard and addressed by our independent judiciary.

Ballots cast that violate procedures set forth in state statute “may not be included in the certified result of any election.” That is the law and why I will support tomorrow's objection. This is the last option to protect the rights of Wisconsin voters who cast legal ballots.

Tomorrow's objection is not an effort to nullify or undermine our democracy. This process is rooted in the constitution and recent precedent. It is the same process used by Democrat lawmakers after the 2000 and 2004 elections.

Failing to address these irregularities and violations, we risk further degrading public trust in our democratic institutions – and that is something no one in American can afford to let happen.

Dear Friend,

We at The Telegram hope you had a Merry Christmas and are enjoying a safe and healthy 2021. Since our last installment, Congress passed a record-breaking spending bill, imposed a partisan new set of rules in the House of Representatives designed to restrict open debate and stifle the voice of the minority party. Congress also completed the electoral certification after debating several objections to slates of electors in states where we saw election irregularities.

Since our last installment, Congress passed a record-breaking spending bill, imposed a partisan new set of rules in the House of Representatives designed to restrict open debate and stifle the voice of the minority party. Congress also completed the electoral certification after debating several objections to slates of electors in states where we saw election irregularities.

We also witnessed a spate of unacceptable lawlessness and vandalism during a breach of the Capitol on Wednesday not unlike the sustained violent rioting and destruction that gripped cities like Kenosha, Madison, Minneapolis, and Chicago for months in 2020. It was wrong then and it was wrong Wednesday. Decent Americans have condemned such behavior across the board, and those who broke the law should be apprehended and punished.

Unfortunately, too many politicians and commentators on the extremes of our political dialogue spent much of last year failing to condemn such spasms of violence, and even making excuses for it in some cases, describing them as “mostly peaceful protests.” Some even cheered them on. By doing this, they conferred a sense of legitimacy on arson, looting and the destruction of property. This must stop. I condemned this violence during the riots in Madison last summer, and I continue to condemn it today. Violence has no place in our civil discourse.
