28 STATEMENT OF INTEREST OF THE UNITED STATES

INTRODUCTION

2 The United States respectfully submits this Statement of Interest pursuant to 28
3 U.S.C. § 517, which authorizes the Attorney General “to attend to the interests of the 4 United States in a suit pending in a court of the United States.” This case presents
5 important questions regarding enforcement of Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act of 1965,
6 52 U.S.C. § 10301 (“Section 2”). Congress has vested the Attorney General with 7 authority to enforce Section 2 on behalf of the United States. See 52 U.S.C. § 10308 (d).
8 Accordingly, the United States has a substantial interest in ensuring proper interpretation
9 of Section 2. The United States submits this Statement of Interest for the limited purpose 10 of addressing the allegations necessary to state a discriminatory purpose claim under 11 Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act.
12

15 Plaintiffs and Plaintiff-Intervenors have pled plausible claims of purposeful
16 discrimination under Section 2. Defendant Arizona Attorney General Brnovich’s motion 17 to dismiss proffers a superficial gloss on intentional discrimination standards and fails to 18 credit or assess correctly the full range of relevant facts alleged. Moreover, Defendant 19 cannot demand evidence at the pleadings stage, especially as to legislative good faith, an 20 inherently fact-intensive issue. Accordingly, the Defendant’s Motion to Dismiss (ECF 21 No. 76) should be denied.

24 The United States expresses no view here on jurisdictional questions, the merits of 25 any claim, nor any other issues aside from those described in this brief.

PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

2 During its 2021 session, the Arizona legislature enacted SB 1003 and SB 1485,
3 both of which altered the state’s early voting system. SB1003, which Governor Doug 4 Ducey signed on May 7, establishes a period to cure early ballots submitted without the 5 required signature; it prohibits voters from curing ballot defects after 7 pm on Election
6 Day. SB 1485, which the Governor signed on May 11, establishes procedures for 7 removing voters from the State’s Permanent Early Voting List (“PEVL”) if they have not 8 cast an early ballot for two consecutive election cycles.

11 In August 2021, Plaintiffs Mi Familia Vota, Arizona Coalition for Change, Living
12 United for Change in Arizona, and League of Conservation Voters, Inc., filed suit
13 pursuant to the First, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth Amendments of the United States
14 Constitution, and Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act, alleging that SB 1003 and SB 1485
15 impose an undue burden on the right to vote and were enacted with discriminatory
16 purpose. See Mi Familia Vota Compl., ECF No. 1 (hereinafter “MFV Compl.”).
17 Subsequently, the motion to intervene filed by the Democratic Senatorial Campaign
18 Committee (“DSCC”) and the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee
19 (“DCCC”) was granted and they filed a complaint in intervention with claims mirroring
20 those of the Mi Familia Plaintiffs. See DSCC Compl. in Int., ECF No. 55 (hereinafter 21 “DSCC Compl.”). Plaintiffs and Plaintiff-Intervenors (collectively “Plaintiffs”) seek to 22 enjoin SB 1003 and SB 1485 and obtain a declaration that these provisions violate the

1 First, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth Amendments, as well as Section 2. MFV Compl. 31;
2 DSCC Compl. 31.

4 On November 15, Defendants Secretary of State Hobbs and the County Recorders
5 filed answers to the complaint and Defendant Brnovich moved to dismiss.¹ Attorney
6 General's Consolidated Motion to Dismiss Plaintiffs' and Intervenor-Plaintiffs'
7 Complaints, ECF No. 76 (hereinafter "AG's Consol. Mot.").

9 LEGAL STANDARD

10 "To survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, 11 accepted as true, to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face." Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 12 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (internal citation and quotation marks omitted). "A claim has 13 facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw 14 the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged." Id.
15 (internal citations omitted). The Ninth Circuit has clarified that (1) a complaint must 16 "contain sufficient allegations of underlying facts to give fair notice and to enable the 17 opposing party to defend itself effectively," and (2) "the factual allegations that are taken
18 as true must plausibly suggest an entitlement to relief, such that it is not unfair to require

26 National Republican Congressional Committee, filed an answer along with their Motion

1 the opposing party to be subjected to the expense of discovery and continued litigation.”
2 Starr v. Baca, 652 F.3d 1202, 1216 (9th Cir. 2011).

4 In reviewing the legal sufficiency of a complaint on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, the 5 court’s “[r]eview is limited to the complaint.” Lee v. City of Los Angeles, 250 F.3d 668, 6 688 (9th Cir. 2001) (alteration in original) (citation omitted); see also United States v.
7 Corinthian Colleges, 655 F.3d 984, 999 (9th Cir. 2011) (holding that “we will not decide
8 these disputed factual matters at this stage. Instead, we focus only on the sufficiency of 9 [Plaintiffs’] allegations.”). Factual challenges to a complaint “have no bearing on the 10 legal sufficiency of the allegations under Rule 12(b)(6).” Lee, 250 F.3d at 688.

11 12 13 STATUTORY BACKGROUND

14 Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act, 52 U.S.C. § 10301, imposes a “permanent,
15 nationwide ban on racial discrimination in voting.” Shelby Cnty. v. Holder, 570 U.S. 529, 16 557 (2013). Section 2(a) prohibits any state or political subdivision from imposing or 17 applying a “voting qualification,” a “prerequisite to voting,” or a “standard, practice, or 18 procedure” that “results in a denial or abridgement of the right of any citizen of the United 19 States to vote on account of race or color” or membership in a language minority group.
20 52 U.S.C. § 10301 (a); see also 52 U.S.C. § 10303 (f)(2) (applying protections to language
21 minority groups). For purposes of the Act, “vote” and “voting” include “all action
22 necessary to make a vote effective in any primary, special, or general election, including,
23 but not limited to, registration, . . . casting a ballot, and having such ballot counted
24 properly and included in the appropriate totals of votes cast.” 52 U.S.C. § 10310(c)(1).
25
26
27
28

1 Thus, “Section 2 prohibits all forms of voting discrimination,” including practices that
2 impair the ability of minority voters to cast a ballot and have it counted on an equal basis
3 with other voters. Thornburg v. Gingles, 478 U.S. 30, 45 n.10 (1986); see also Brnovich
4 v. Democratic Nat’l Comm., 141 S. Ct. 2321, 2333 (2021).

6 Like the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, Section 2 prohibits voting laws
7 and practices adopted with a discriminatory purpose. See Chisom v. Roemer, 501 U.S.
8 380, 394 n.21 (1991); see also Brnovich, 141 S. Ct. at 2330. Thus, a showing of intent
9 “sufficient to constitute a violation of the [F]ourteenth [A]mendment” also suffices “to 10 constitute a violation of [S]ection 2.” McMillan v. Escambia Cnty., 748 F.2d 1037, 1046
11 (Former 5th Cir. 1984). Section 2 purpose claims also rely on the assessment of 12 “circumstantial and direct evidence of intent” relevant to constitutional cases. Vill. of 13 Arlington Heights v. Metro. Hous. Dev. Corp., 429 U.S. 252, 266 (1977); see also, e.g.,
14 Brnovich, 141 S. Ct. at 2349 (applying Arlington Heights). Categories of relevant 15 evidence regarding the purpose of a challenged practice include (1) the impact of the 16 decision; (2) the historical background of the decision, particularly if it reveals a series of 17 decisions undertaken with discriminatory intent; (3) the sequence of events leading up to 18 the decision; (4) whether the challenged decision departs, either procedurally or 19 substantively, from the normal practice; and (5) contemporaneous statements and 20 viewpoints held by decisionmakers. See Arlington Heights, 429 U.S. at 266-68; Fusilier
21 v. Landry, 963 F.3d 448, 463 (5th Cir. 2020); Veasey v. Abbott (Veasey II), 830 F.3d 216,
22 230-31 (5th Cir. 2016) (en banc). “Once racial discrimination is shown to have been a 23

1 ‘substantial’ or ‘motivating’ factor behind enactment of the law, the burden shifts to the 2 law’s defenders to demonstrate that the law would have been enacted without this factor.”
4 Hunter v. Underwood, 471 U.S. 222, 228 (1985).

5 A violation of Section 2 can also “be established by proof of discriminatory results
6 alone.” Chisom, 501 U.S. at 404. Section 2(b) lays out the standard for a “results” claim.
7 A violation “is established if, based on the totality of circumstances, . . . the political 8 processes leading to nomination or election in the State or political subdivision are not 9 equally open to participation by members of [a racial or language minority group] in that 10 its members have less opportunity than other members of the electorate to participate in 11 the political process and to elect representatives of their choice.” 52 U.S.C. § 10301(b).

14 ARGUMENT

15 I. Plaintiffs Have Alleged Plausible Discriminatory Purpose Claims

16 Plaintiffs allege plausible claims of purposeful discrimination under Section 2.
17 MFV Compl. ¶¶ 144-145; see also DSCC Compl. ¶¶ 134-136. Both the Mi Familia Vota
18 and the DSCC complaints set forth an array of facts under each category of the Arlington
19 Heights intent framework that, when considered together, allege plausible claims that SB
20 1003 and SB 1485 were enacted with discriminatory purpose, and therefore violate
21 Section 2. See MFV Compl. ¶¶ 74-84, 89-94, DSCC Compl. ¶¶ 82-88, 94-100, 118-120
22 (foreseeable impact of the challenged provisions); MFV Compl. ¶¶ 97-126, DSCC Compl.
23 ¶ 121 (historical background of the challenged provisions); MFV Compl. ¶¶ 48-68, DSCC
24 Compl. ¶¶ 60-78 (sequence of events leading up to enactment of the challenged 25
26

1 provisions); DSCC Compl. ¶¶ 111-117 (procedural departures during the legislative
2 process); MFV Compl. ¶ 67, DSCC Compl. ¶¶ 114-116 (contemporaneous statements
3 and viewpoints held by decisionmakers).

5 Contrary to Defendant’s argument, it is he, not the Plaintiffs, who “improperly
6 attempt[s] to conflate and combine” Section 2’s discriminatory purpose and results tests.
7 AG’s Consol. Mot. 3, 11-12. Defendant’s response simply misconstrues what plaintiffs
8 need to state a Section 2 purpose claim. He emphasizes that Plaintiffs have not argued 9 that the disparate impacts they have alleged “could satisfy the results test,” or “explain[ed]
10 how the Signature Requirement and the EVL Periodic Voting Requirement...violate the 11 results test.” Id. 3, 11. But Plaintiffs were not required to do so. Section 2 purpose or 12 intent claims and Section 2 results claims are two distinct routes to establishing liability.
13

15 The level of effect a plaintiff must plead and prove differs materially between the 16 two types of claims. Section 2 “results” claims require more than showing just that the 17 challenged practice produces “some disparity in impact.” Brnovich, 141 S. Ct. at 2339.
18 Rather, a court must consider the totality of circumstances to determine whether the 19 challenged law “interacts with social and historical conditions” to result in denying 20 minority voters an equal opportunity to participate in the political process and elect 21 representatives of their choice. Gingles, 478 U.S. at 47. It has long been settled that,
22
24
25
26
27
28

1 since the 1982 amendments to Section 2, plaintiffs can bring discriminatory results claims
2 without having to prove discriminatory purpose. Chisom, 501 U.S. at 404.²

4 The reverse is also true. Section 2 has always prohibited, and continues to prohibit,
5 intentional racial discrimination, and private plaintiffs who bring a Section 2
6 discriminatory purpose claim need not also plead or prove a Section 2 results claim. All 7 they need show is that the challenged practice has some impact on them.

9 The legislative history of the 1982 amendments to Section 2 confirms that the two 10 claims are separate and distinct:

11 The amendment to the language of Section 2 is designed to make clear that 12 plaintiffs need not prove a discriminatory purpose. . . . Plaintiffs must either
13 prove such intent, or alternatively, must show that the challenged system 14 or practice, in the context of all the circumstances in the jurisdiction in 15 question, results in minorities being denied equal access to the political process.³

16 S. Rep. No. 97-417 at 27 (1982) (emphasis added; footnote omitted); see Chisom, 501 17 U.S. at 394.

18 The Supreme Court in Brnovich recently underscored that point. It treated the 19 plaintiffs' Section 2 results claim and their Section 2 purpose claim as distinct, discussing
20 the two claims in separate sections of its opinion. Compare 141 S. Ct. at 2346-48
21

23
24
25 ² The case upon which Defendant solely relies, Davis v. Bandemer, 478 U.S.
26 109 (1986), involved a political gerrymandering claim under the Equal Protection
Clause. It did not purport to explicate Section 2 standards.

27 ³ This report is “the authoritative source for legislative intent” concerning the 28 1982 amendments to the Voting Rights Act. Gingles, 478 U.S. at 43 n.7; see also Brnovich, 141 S. Ct. at 2332-33 (relying on the report).

1 (addressing the plaintiffs’ results claim) with id. at 2348-50 (addressing plaintiffs’
2 purpose claim). And with respect to the purpose claim, the Court applied the longstanding
3 Arlington Heights framework. Id. at 2334 (noting plaintiffs brought a discriminatory
4 purpose claim under Section 2); id. at 2348-49 (discussing Arlington Heights). And, of 5 course, the two claims are distinct. See McMillan, 748 F.2d at 1046 (“Congress intended
6 that fulfilling either the more restrictive intent test or the results test would be sufficient
7 to show a violation of [S]ection 2.”) (emphasis added); Garza v. Cnty. of Los Angeles, 8 918 F.2d 763, 766 (9th Cir. 1990) (“Congress amended the Voting Rights Act in 1982 to 9 add language indicating that the Act forbids not only intentional discrimination, but also 10 any practice shown to have a disparate impact on minority voting strength”).
11
13

14 Plaintiffs’ complaints allege purposeful discrimination under Section 2. MFV
15 Compl. ¶¶ 127-145; DSCC Compl. ¶¶ 115-141. They do not plead a Section 2 results
16 claim. Yet, consistent with Arlington Heights, both complaints appropriately allege the 17 known and foreseeable disproportionate impact of the challenged provisions that, when 18 considered with Plaintiffs’ other factual allegations under the Arlington Heights
19 framework, suffice to plead a plausible claim of purposeful discrimination. Plaintiffs 20 need not further allege nor must they prove that the impact of the challenged provisions
21 also satisfies Section 2’s discriminatory results test.
22

24 While Defendant’s Rule 12 Motion acknowledges the Arlington Heights
25 framework, AG’s Consol. Mot. 12-13, he disregards the full range of Plaintiffs’ factual
26 allegations relevant to that framework. Courts “[d]etermining whether invidious
27

1 discriminatory purpose was a motivating factor” behind a facially neutral law must 2 engage in a “sensitive inquiry into such circumstantial and direct evidence of intent as
3 may be available.” N.C. State Conf. of NAACP v. McCrory, 831 F.3d 204, 221 (4th Cir.
4 2016) (citing Arlington Heights, 429 U.S. at 266-67). Here, Defendant’s cursory intent
5 inquiry notes select facts in isolation, ignores others, and concludes summarily that 6 “[n]one of Plaintiffs’ allegations suffice to establish the necessary context to plausibly 7 infer discriminatory motive.” AG’s Consol. Mot. 13.

10 Regarding Plaintiffs’ allegations related to the known and foreseeable disparate
11 impacts of the challenged provisions, Defendant argues that Plaintiffs rely almost 12 exclusively on these allegations and that disparate impact or “awareness of disparate
13 impact” alone does not support a cognizable intentional discrimination claim. AG’s 14 Consol. Mot. 12. Defendant further states that “[i]nstead, the ‘proof of racially 15 discriminatory intent or purpose is required,’ not proof of discriminatory impact, to 16 establish purposeful discrimination.” AG’s Consol. Mot. 12 (quoting Arlington Heights,
17 429 U.S. at 265).⁴
18
19
20
21

24 ⁴ Defendant’s quotation from Arlington Heights is incomplete. The Court’s full 25 statement was: “Disproportionate impact is not irrelevant, but it is not the sole 26 touchstone of an invidious racial discrimination. [citing Washington v. Davis, 426 U.S.
27 229 (1976)] Proof of racially discriminatory intent or purpose is required to show a 28 violation of the Equal Protection Clause.” Arlington Heights, 429 U.S. at 265. Of course, as the opinion makes clear, proof of racially discriminatory purpose can include both direct and circumstantial evidence, including evidence of disproportionate impact.
Id. at 266.

1 Not only does Defendant’s argument mischaracterize Arlington Heights, it also
2 misapprehends Section 2 purpose claims and the Arlington Heights intent framework. A
3 review of Section 2 purpose claims relies on an assessment of circumstantial and direct 4 evidence of discriminatory purpose. Arlington Heights, 429 U.S. at 265-68. Evidence of 5 disparate impact is but one category in a non-exhaustive list of evidentiary factors that a 6 court can consider to determine whether discriminatory purpose motivated the change or 7 provision at issue. Id. at 266-67 (stating that “the impact of the official action whether it
8 ‘bears more heavily on one race than another,’ may provide an important starting point”
9 in determining whether invidious discriminatory purpose was a motivating factor”).
10

13 Plaintiffs’ allegations regarding the foreseeable discriminatory impact SB 1003
14 and SB 1485 will have on Native American, Latino, and Black voters, see e.g. MFV
15 Compl. ¶¶ 3, 67, 77-84, 90-93; DSCC Compl. ¶¶ 95-97, 99, 119-120, when viewed as a 16 whole, raise a “strong inference that the adverse effects were desired,” weighing in favor
17 of a finding of discriminatory purpose. Personnel Adm’r of Massachusetts v. Feeney, 442
18 U.S. 256, 279 n.25 (1979). Yet, Plaintiffs do not contend that impact evidence alone
19 establishes discriminatory intent, but rather include these allegations as one evidentiary
20 component establishing the intent behind the enactment of SB 1003 and SB 1485. See
21 MFV Compl. ¶¶ 144-145.

24 Defendant’s ready dismissal of additional categories of evidence under the 25 Arlington Heights framework also cannot defeat Plaintiffs’ discriminatory purpose claims
26 at the motion to dismiss phase. As to Plaintiffs’ allegations concerning historical 27
28

1 discrimination in Arizona and the historical background of the challenged provisions,
2 Defendant faults Plaintiffs for “spend[ing] an inordinate amount of time on historical 3 background,” and “not connect[ing] this history to the challenged provisions or the 4 process of enacting them.” AG’s Consol. Mot. 13. To the contrary, however, Plaintiffs’
5 allegations include a comprehensive accounting of Arizona’s history of racial 6 discrimination, MFV Compl. ¶¶ 97-99, 112-120; of discrimination in voting and voter
7 suppression, MFV Compl. ¶¶ 100-111; the effects of the history of discrimination on 8 voting in the present day, MFV Compl. ¶¶ 121-126, as well as how that history and current 9 political undercurrents influenced the sequence of events leading up to the enactment of 10 SB 1003 and SB 1485, DSCC Compl. ¶¶ 60-76, MFV Compl. ¶¶ 48-68; which are all
11 particularly relevant to the discriminatory intent inquiry. McCrory, 831 F.3d at 226-227
12 (stating that law’s purpose could not be properly understood without contextual facts 13 influencing the enactment of the law at issue, as well as historical background evidence).
14
16
17

18 Defendant also dismisses Plaintiffs’ allegations related to contemporaneous
19 statements by legislators, DSCC Compl. ¶¶ 114-117; MFV Compl. ¶¶ 67-68, as 20 “irrelevant” because “the question is not the purpose of [one legislator] but the purpose 21 of the legislature as a whole.” AG’s Consol. Mot. 15. But the Supreme Court has 22 instructed, that because “[o]utright admissions of impermissible racial motivation are 23 infrequent[,] ... plaintiffs often must rely upon other evidence,” including the broader 24 context surrounding passage of the legislation. Hunt v. Cromartie, 526 U.S. 541, 553
25 (1999). Moreover, “[i]n a vote denial case such as the one here, where the plaintiffs allege 26
27
28

1 that the legislature imposed barriers to minority voting, this holistic approach is
2 particularly important, for “[d]iscrimination today is more subtle than the visible methods
3 used in 1965.” McCrory, 831 F.3d at 221 (quoting H.R. Rep. No. 109-478, at 6 (2006)).

5 Plaintiffs have presented an array of evidence and facts sufficient to give fair notice
6 of a plausible claim at this stage of the litigation. And while impact evidence is relevant
7 to their discriminatory purpose claim, Plaintiffs need not allege or prove a Section 2
8 discriminatory results claim to state a purpose claim. Defendant’s arguments to the 9 contrary are incorrect. Accordingly, Defendant’s Motion to Dismiss should be denied as 10 to the Plaintiffs’ discriminatory purpose claim.
11

12 II. Defendants Cannot Succeed on a Motion to Dismiss by Requiring 13 Evidence Sufficient to Overcome Any Presumption of Legislative Good 14 Faith

15 In addition to misapplying the Arlington Heights framework, Defendant’s analysis 16 appears to demand evidence at the motion to dismiss phase sufficient to overcome the 17 “presumption of legislative good faith.” See AG’s Consol. Mot. 12-13. But whether that 18 presumption stands or yields is an inherently fact-based question best suited for the merits
19 stage of litigation. See Abbott v. Perez, 138 S. Ct. 2305, 2325 (2018); see Dahlia v.
20 Rodriguez, 735 F.3d 1060, 1076 (9th Cir. 2013) (en banc) (declining to resolve factual
21 disputes at the motion to dismiss phase); Am. Bank of the N. v. Mouilso, No. CV-16-22 08207-PCT-GMS, 2018 WL 2065066, at *1 (D. Ariz. May 3, 2018) (denying a motion to 23 dismiss because “factual disputes are not resolved in a motion to dismiss”). Instead, a 24 court addressing a motion to dismiss must assume the facts alleged in the complaint are 25
26
27
28

1 true, must draw all reasonable inferences from those facts in favor of the plaintiff, and 2 must ignore contrary factual assertions made by the movant. Accordingly, Plaintiffs have 3 stated a claim for intentional discrimination under Arlington Heights. Whether evidence 4 adduced during discovery suffices to prove that claim, and thus overcome any 5 presumption of legislative good faith, is an issue for the merits phase of the litigation.

7 But Plaintiffs need not prove their claim now at the motion to dismiss stage.
8

9 Moreover, the Defendant’s argument that the legislature may have had other 10 motivations, see AG’s Consol. Mot. 13, demonstrates why application of any 11 “presumption of good faith” inherently requires the resolution of factual disputes that are 12 properly considered only after discovery. Determining legislative motivations is a 13 complex, fact-intensive undertaking. See Arlington Heights, 429 U.S. at 265 (“Rarely
14 can it be said that a legislature or administrative body operating under a broad mandate
15 made a decision motivated solely by a single concern, or even that a particular purpose 16 was the ‘dominant’ or ‘primary’ one.”). Most of the relevant facts about elections and 17 the purposes animating SB 1003 and SB 1485 are possessed solely by the State, its 18 counties, and other governmental actors. Discovery may help illuminate those purposes.
19 But at this stage, the range of facts alleged by the Plaintiffs adequately and plausibly plead 20 claims for purposeful discrimination. Those facts, taken as true, plausibly suggest an
