IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

Mi Familia Vota, et al.,
Plaintiffs,

v.

Adrian Fontes, in his official capacity as Arizona Secretary of State, et al.,
Defendants.

No. CV-22-00509-PHX-SRB

ORDER

AND CONSOLIDATED CASES

The Court now considers Defendants Mark Brnovich and the State of Arizona’s (collectively, “Defendants”) Consolidated Motion to Dismiss (“Motion”) Plaintiffs’ Complaints. (Doc. 127, “Mot.”) For the following reasons, Defendants’ Motion is denied except as to Plaintiffs’ freestanding procedural due process claims.

I. BACKGROUND

This case arises out of two Arizona laws regulating voting registration, H.B. 2243 and H.B. 2492 (“the Voting Laws”). The Voting Laws, effective January 1, 2023, enable government officials to require heightened proof of citizenship from Arizona registrants and mandate certain consequences if a registrant does not provide such proof. (See generally Doc. 169, Poder Latinx Compl.) Plaintiffs, the United States of America (“United States”) and a collection of nonpublic entities (“Private Plaintiffs”), allege that

1 the Voting Laws are both statutorily and constitutionally unsound.<sup>1</sup> (See, e.g., id. at 2 ¶¶ 86–152.)

3 A. Recent History of Arizona Voting Laws

4 Arizona has required documentary proof of citizenship (“DPOC”) from in-state 5 voters since 2004. (Doc. 1, 22-cv-1124, USA Compl. ¶ 41.) An individual seeking to 6 register to vote in Arizona state elections must provide one of the following forms of 7 “evidence of citizenship”:

8 1. The number of the applicant’s driver license or nonoperating 9 identification license issued after October 1, 1996 by the department of 10 transportation or the equivalent governmental agency of another state 11 within the United States if the agency indicates on the applicant’s driver 12 license or nonoperating identification license that the person has provided 13 satisfactory proof of United States citizenship.

14 2. A legible photocopy of the applicant’s birth certificate that verifies 15 citizenship to the satisfaction of the county recorder.

16 3. A legible photocopy of pertinent pages of the applicant’s United States 17 passport identifying the applicant and the applicant’s passport number or 18 presentation to the county recorder of the applicant’s United States 19 passport.

20 4. A presentation to the county recorder of the applicant’s United States 21 naturalization documents or the number of the certificate of naturalization.
22 If only the number of the certificate of naturalization is provided, the 23 applicant shall not be included in the registration rolls until the number of 24 the certificate of naturalization is verified with the United States 25 immigration and naturalization service by the county recorder.

26 5. Other documents or methods of proof that are established pursuant to the 27 Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986.

28 <sup>1</sup> Plaintiff Mi Familia Vota describes itself as “a national, non-profit civic engagement organization with a mission of uniting Latino, immigrant, and allied communities to promote social and economic justice through increased civic participation by encouraging leadership development, citizenship, and issue organizing.” (Doc. 65, Mi Familia Vota Compl. ¶ 16.) It “encourages non-partisan voter registration and voter participation and has challenged voter suppression around the nation.” (Id.) Similarly, Plaintiff Voto Latino “is a 501(c)(4) nonprofit, social welfare organization that engages, educates, and empowers Latinx communities across the United States, working to ensure that Latinx voters are enfranchised and included in the democratic process. In furtherance of its mission, Voto Latino expends significant resources to register and mobilize thousands of Latinx voters each election cycle.” (Id. ¶ 19.) “Voto Latino considers eligible Latinx voters in Arizona to be the core of its constituency.” (Id.) Apart from the United States, the remaining Plaintiffs allege similar interests in maximizing voter turnout among certain communities, including Native Americans, Asian Americans, and Democratic voters in general. (See, e.g., Doc. 1, 22-cv-1381, AZ AANHPI For Equity Coalition Compl. (“AAANHPI Compl.”) ¶¶ 30–31; Doc. 67, Living United for Change in Arizona Am. Compl. (“LUCHA Compl.”) ¶¶ 254–60.)

1           6. The applicant’s Bureau of Indian affairs card number, tribal treaty card 2           number or tribal enrollment number.

3           Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 16-166(F).

4           In addition to providing applicants a State Form to register for state and federal 5           elections, Arizona also provides a form created by the United States Election Assistance 6           Commission, known as the Federal Form, to register for federal elections only. See 7           Gonzales v. Arizona, 677 F.3d 383, 394 (9th Cir. 2012). The Federal Form requires 8           applicants to check a box under penalty of perjury indicating that they are citizens of the 9           United States (“Check Box Requirement”). (AAANHPI Compl. ¶ 42.)

10           Arizona had previously imposed a DPOC requirement on applicants using the 11           Federal Form. In 2004, Arizona passed a law requiring all applicants for voter 12           registration, regardless of whether they used the Federal or State Form, to provide DPOC 13           in order to register. (USA Compl. ¶ 41.) In 2013, the United States Supreme Court held 14           that the National Voter Registration Act (“NVRA”) preempted Arizona’s requirement as 15           applied to applicants using the Federal Form. See Arizona v. Inter Tribal Council of 16           Arizona, Inc., 570 U.S. 1, 20 (2013). The Federal Form contains “only such identifying 17           information (including the signature of the applicant) and other information (including 18           data relating to previous registration by the applicant), as is necessary to enable the 19           appropriate State election official to assess the eligibility of the applicant and to 20           administer voter registration and other parts of the election process.” 52 U.S.C.
21           § 20508(b)(1). Because the NVRA mandates that states “accept and use” the Federal 22           Form—which does not require applicants to provide DPOC—the Inter Tribal Court held 23           that Arizona could not “requir[e] a Federal Form applicant to submit information beyond 24           that required by the form itself,” including DPOC. 570 U.S. at 12, 20 (“States retain the 25           flexibility to design and use their own registration forms, but the Federal Form provides a 26           backstop: No matter what procedural hurdles a State’s own form imposes, the Federal 27           Form guarantees that a simple means of registering to vote in federal elections will be 28

1 available.”); (AAANHPI Compl. ¶ 42.)<sup>2</sup>

2 Plaintiffs allege that ever since Inter Tribal Council, Arizona has attempted to 3 disenfranchise certain voters. In 2018, the Arizona Secretary of State entered into a 4 Consent Decree with Plaintiff League of United Latin American Citizens (“LULAC”) 5 after the nonprofit sued the state for allegedly discriminating against registrants who used 6 the State Form without providing DPOC. (See Doc. 37, 2:17-cv-04102-DGC, LULAC
7 Consent Decree; AAANHPI Compl. ¶ 46.) Plaintiffs explain that under the LULAC 8 Consent Decree, Arizona must “(1) treat all registrants the same regardless of whether 9 they use the state form or Federal Form, registering all voters for federal elections 10 regardless of provided evidence of citizenship; and (2) check the motor vehicles database 11 for citizenship documentation before limiting voters to federal-only elections.” (Mi 12 Familia Vota Compl. ¶¶ 44–45.)

13 B. The Voting Laws Passed in 2022

14 1. H.B. 2492

15 Former Arizona Governor Doug Ducey signed H.B. 2492 into law on March 30, 16 2022. (See id. ¶ 3.) H.B. 2492 created additional requirements for individuals using either 17 the Federal or State Form. Specifically, the statute mandates registrants show DPOC and 18 Documentary Proof of Residence (“DPOR”) through the following provisions:

19 Requirements for proper registration

20 A person is presumed to be properly registered to vote on completion of a 21 registration form . . . that contains at least the name, the residence address 22 or the location, proof of location of residence as prescribed by Section 16-23 123, the date and place of birth and the signature . . . of the registrant . . . and a checkmark or other appropriate mark in the “yes” box next to the question regarding citizenship. Any application for registration, including an application on a form prescribed by the United States Election Assistance Commission, must contain a checkmark or other appropriate

24 <sup>2</sup> The differences between Arizona’s state and federal voting registration create different 25 voter rolls depending on when a voter registered. As described by Plaintiffs:

26 Arizona has three classes of voters: (1) those who registered pre-2005 and 27 did not have to show documentary proof of citizenship (because Arizona 28 did not yet require it), who can vote in all elections; (2) those who registered post-2005 using the [Federal Form] . . . and did not show documentary proof of citizenship, who can vote only in federal elections; and (3) those who registered post-2005 and showed adequate proof of citizenship, who can vote in all elections.

(Mi Familia Vota Compl. ¶¶ 2, 43.)

1 mark in the “yes” box next to the question regarding citizenship as a 2 condition of being properly registered to vote as either a voter who is 3 eligible to vote a full ballot or a voter who is eligible to vote only with a 4 ballot for federal offices. . . .

5 Proof of location of residence

6 Except for persons who register pursuant to Section 16-103, a person who 7 registers to vote shall provide an identifying document that establishes 8 proof of location of residence. Any of the identifying documents prescribed 9 in Section 16-579, Subsection A, Paragraph 1 constitutes satisfactory proof 10 of residence.

11 H.B. 2492 §§ 4(A), 5. The Federal Form does not require an applicant to list her place of 12 birth (“the Birthplace Requirement”). (See AAANHPI Compl. ¶ 63; DNC Compl. ¶ 41.)

13 The documents with which an individual can show DPOR are:

14 (a) A valid form of identification that bears the photograph, name and 15 address of the elector that reasonably appear to be the same as the name and 16 address in the precinct register, including an Arizona driver license, an 17 Arizona nonoperating identification license, a tribal enrollment card or 18 other form of tribal identification or a United States federal, state or local 19 government issued identification. Identification is deemed valid unless it 20 can be determined on its face that it has expired.

21 (b) Two different items that contain the name and address of the elector that 22 reasonably appear to be the same as the name and address in the precinct 23 register, including a utility bill, a bank or credit union statement that is 24 dated within ninety days of the date of the election, a valid Arizona vehicle 25 registration, an Arizona vehicle insurance card, an Indian census card, tribal 26 enrollment card or other form of tribal identification, a property tax 27 statement, a recorder’s certificate, a voter registration card, a valid United 28 States federal, state or local government issued identification or any mailing that is labeled as “official election material”. Identification is deemed valid unless it can be determined on its face that it has expired.

(c) A valid form of identification that bears the photograph, name and address of the elector except that if the address on the identification does not reasonably appear to be the same as the address in the precinct register or the identification is a valid United States military identification card or a valid United States passport and does not bear an address, the identification must be accompanied by one of the items listed in subdivision (b) of this paragraph.

Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 16-579(A)(1). Unlike preexisting Arizona law, H.B. 2492 contains no exceptions to the DPOR requirement for applicants who do not have numbered street addresses. (LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 28, 40.)

The statute also mandates different requirements for applicants using the Federal or State Form:

Except for a form produced by the United States Election Assistance Commission, any application for registration shall be accompanied by

1 satisfactory evidence of citizenship as prescribed in Section 16-166, 2 Subsection F, and the County Recorder . . . shall reject any application for 3 registration that is not accompanied by satisfactory evidence of citizenship.

4 H.B. 2492 § 4(C).

5 Federal only voters; early ballot; eligibility

- 6 1. A person who has registered to vote and who has not provided satisfactory 7 evidence of citizenship as prescribed by Section 16-166, Subsection F is not 8 eligible to vote in presidential elections.
- 9 2. A person who has not provided satisfactory evidence of citizenship 10 pursuant to Section 16-166, Subsection F and who is eligible to vote only 11 for federal offices is not eligible to receive an early ballot by mail.

12 Id. § 5(A).

13 The statute places the burden on County Recorders to implement the provisions of 14 H.B. 2492. A County Recorder “shall cancel a registration” when “the County Recorder 15 receives and confirms information that the person registered is not a United States 16 citizen.” Id. § 8(A)(10). Election officials also have duties to verify registrants’ 17 citizenship. “Within ten days after receiving an application for registration [through the 18 Federal Form] that is not accompanied by [DPOC], the county recorder or other officer in 19 charge of elections shall use all available resources to verify the citizenship status of the 20 applicant.” Id. § 4(D). The statute prescribes a specific verification process:

21 . . . [A]t a minimum, [the election official] shall compare the information 22 available on the application for registration with the following, provided the 23 county has access:

- 24 1. The Department of Transportation databases of Arizona driver licenses or 25 nonoperating identification licenses.
- 26 2. The Social Security Administration databases.
- 27 3. The United States Citizenship and Immigration Services Systemic Alien 28 Verification for Entitlements program, if practicable.
1. A National Association for Public Health statistics and information systems electronic verification of vital events system.
5. Any other state, city, town, county or federal database and any other database relating to voter registration to which the County Recorder . . . has access, including an electronic registration information center database.

The statute provides for three different outcomes from this verification. First, if the election official “matches the applicant with information that verifies the applicant is a United States citizen . . . the applicant shall be properly registered.” Id. § 4(E). Second, if

1 the election official “matches the applicant with information that the applicant is not a 2 United States citizen, the County Recorder . . . shall reject the application, notify the 3 applicant that the applicant was rejected because the applicant is not a United States 4 citizen and forward the application to the county attorney and Attorney General for 5 investigation.” Id. Third, if the election official “is unable to match the applicant with 6 appropriate citizenship information, the [official] shall notify the applicant that [her 7 citizenship could not be verified] and that the applicant will not be qualified to vote in a 8 presidential election or by mail with an early ballot in any election until satisfactory 9 evidence of citizenship is provided.” Id.

10 Lastly, the statute provides for prosecution of certain registrants referred for 11 investigation. Election officials must “make available to the Attorney General a list of all 12 individuals who are registered to vote and who have not provided satisfactory evidence of 13 citizenship pursuant to Section 16-166.” Id. § 7(A). The Attorney General must then use 14 “all available resources to verify the citizenship” of the referred applicants and “at a 15 minimum shall compare the information available on the application for registration” 16 with the same databases listed in § 4(D) of the statute. Id. § 7(B). “The Attorney General 17 shall prosecute individuals who are found to not be United States citizens pursuant to 18 Section 16-182.” Id. § 7(D).

19 Both parties detail the application and impact of H.B. 2492. Plaintiffs allege that 20 absent such proof of citizenship as described in H.B. 2492, (1) new registrants cannot use 21 the Federal Form to vote in presidential elections or vote by mail in elections for any 22 office unless they provide additional documentation; (2) currently registered voters who 23 registered using the Federal Form without proof of citizenship cannot vote in presidential 24 elections or vote by mail for any office; and (3) approximately 200,000 Arizona voters 25 who never had to provide proof of citizenship upon registration cannot vote in 26 presidential elections, unless they provide additional documentation of citizenship. (See 27 Mi Familia Vota Compl. ¶¶ 3, 43, 63.) In Defendants’ words, “if you file the Federal 28 Form, you will be registered for congressional elections. And if, in the course of . . .

1 subsequent list maintenance they discover not the absence of evidence of citizenship, but 2 proof that you are not a citizen, you will be deregistered. [I]f you file the State Form . . .
 3 [y]ou need to provide documentary proof of citizenship or you won't be registered."
 4 (Hr'g Tr. at 30:14–21.)

5 Plaintiffs further describe that “[t]he law provides no details concerning how 6 long-registered voters will be notified that they must provide new documents, or how 7 they will be given an opportunity to do so.” (Mi Familia Vota Compl. ¶¶ 3, 65.) Plaintiffs 8 also allege that there is no cutoff date in the statute by which a registration must be 9 cancelled, meaning “nothing prevent[s] the county recorder or other election official from 10 removing a voter from the rolls, or otherwise blocking them from voting by mail or in 11 presidential elections, weeks or even days before an election, when it is too late for the 12 affected voters to correct any error.” (Doc. 1, 22-cv-1369, Democratic National 13 Committee Compl. (“DNC Compl.”) ¶ 39.)

14 2. H.B. 2243

15 On July 6, 2022, Governor Ducey signed H.B. 2243 into law. (LUCHA Compl.
 16 ¶ 18.) According to Plaintiffs, H.B. 2243 reenforces and extends several of the 17 requirements imposed by H.B. 2492. Like H.B. 2492, H.B. 2243 provides for 18 cancellation of registration and investigation of registrants should they fail to meet certain 19 requirements. (AAANHPI Compl. ¶ 84 (citing H.B. 2243 § 2).) H.B. 2243 also adds 20 verification deadlines for registrants and mandates that election officials perform 21 additional verification procedures. Specifically,

22 When the County Recorder obtains information pursuant to this Section and 23 confirms that the person registered is not a United States citizen . . .
 24 [b]efore the County Recorder cancels a registration pursuant to this 25 paragraph, the County Recorder shall send the person notice by 26 forwardable mail that the person's registration will be canceled in thirty 27 five days unless the person provides satisfactory evidence of United States 28 citizenship pursuant to Section 16-166. The notice shall include a list of documents that person may provide and a postage prepaid preaddressed returned envelop. If the person registered does not provide satisfactory evidence within thirty five days, the County Recorder shall cancel the registration and notify the county attorney and Attorney General for possible investigation.

H.B. 2243 § 2(A)(10).

1 Plaintiffs point out that not all registrants suspected of being ineligible to vote in 2 Arizona are subject to a 35-day deadline<sup>3</sup> to provide documentation. (See AAANHPI 3 Compl. ¶¶ 16–18, 60.) Certain registrants suspected of lacking Arizona residency are 4 subject to a more lenient response deadline under the statute:

5 Each month the Department of Transportation shall furnish to the Secretary 6 of State . . . a list of persons who the Department has been notified have 7 been issued a driver license . . . in another state. [After receiving this list 8 from the Secretary of State,] [t]he County Recorder shall promptly send 9 notice by forwardable mail to each person who has obtained a driver license 10 . . . in another state and a postage prepaid preaddressed return form 11 requesting the person confirm by signing under penalty of perjury that the 12 person is a resident of this state and is not knowingly registered to vote in 13 another state . . . . If the person returns the form within ninety days 14 confirming that the person is a resident of this state, the County Recorder 15 shall maintain the registration in active status. If the person fails to return 16 the form within ninety days, the County Recorder shall place the person's 17 registration in inactive status.

12 H.B. 2243 § 2(E).

13 H.B. 2243 also mandates monthly review and potential purging of voter rolls.

14 Specifically,

15 To the extent practicable, each month the County Recorder shall compare 16 persons who are registered to vote in that county and who the county
 17 recorder has reason to believe are not United States citizens and persons 18 who are registered to vote without satisfactory evidence of citizenship as 19 prescribed by Section 16-166 with the Systemic Alien Verification for 20 Entitlements program maintained by the United States Citizenship and 21 Immigration Services to verify the citizenship status of the persons 22 registered.

19 Id. § 2(H). County Recorders must conduct similar checks with the Social Security 20 Administration Database, Verification of Vital Events System, and “relevant city, town, 21 county, state and federal databases to which the County Recorder has access to confirm 22 information obtained that requires cancellation of registrations pursuant to this Section.”

23 Id. § 2(G), (I)–(J).

24 Lastly, “[a]fter cancelling a registration pursuant to this Section, the County
 25 Recorder shall send a notice by forwardable mail informing the person that the person’s

26 _____
 27 <sup>3</sup> Plaintiffs add that Governor Ducey vetoed a previous version of H.B. 2243, expressing 28 his concerns that the previous bill risked “disturb[ing]” the right to vote “without sufficient due process.” (See AAANHPI Compl. ¶¶ 57–58.) The previous bill gave individuals suspected of lacking United States citizenship 90 days to provide DPOC. (Id.
 ¶ 60.) H.B. 2243, as enacted, reduced that response period to 35 days. (Id.)

1 registration has been cancelled, the reason for cancellation, the qualifications of electors
2 pursuant to Section 16-101 and instructions on registering to vote . . . .” Id. § 2(K).

3 C. Legality of the Voting Laws

4 Plaintiffs claim that the Voting Laws are illegal in multiple respects.

5 1. Preemption Under *Inter Tribal Council

6 Plaintiffs allege that “[i]n essence, H.B. 2492 creates three distinct voter rolls in 7 Arizona—one for all local, state, and federal elections, one for U.S. House and Senate 8 elections, and one for Presidential elections.” (AAANHPI Compl. ¶ 72.) Under Inter
9 Tribal Council, as interpreted by Plaintiffs, the NVRA preempts Arizona’s requirement 10 that Federal Form users provide DPOC in order to vote for President. (E.g. Mi Familia 11 Vota Compl. ¶¶ 97–99.) The United States details that during legislative hearings on H.B.
12 2492, legislative counsel warned that the NVRA would preempt the statute’s DPOC 13 requirement for Federal Form users. (USA Compl. ¶ 45 (referencing Inter Tribal Council, 14 570 U.S. at 20).) House Speaker Pro Tempore Travis Grantham responded that defending 15 H.B. 2492 would be a “fight worth having” in court. (Id. ¶ 46; LUCHA Compl. ¶ 209.)

16 2. Arbitrary & Discriminatory Verification of Citizenship

17 Plaintiffs also contend that the citizenship verification requirements in the Voting 18 Laws threaten to illegally disenfranchise thousands of Arizonans.

19 After attempting to verify a registrant’s citizenship, County Recorders must 20 “cancel a registration . . . when the [Recorder] receives and confirms information that the 21 person registered is not a United States citizen,” but the statute does not define what 22 “confirms information” means in this context. (AAANHPI Compl. ¶ 82.) Plaintiffs add 23 that the databases used to “confirm” citizenship are “outdated and inaccurate,” which 24 subjects naturalized citizens who might erroneously appear in those databases to 25 disproportionate scrutiny.<sup>4</sup> (Id. ¶¶ 73, 86; Poder Latinx Compl. ¶ 127.) Plaintiffs allege on 26

27
28
<sup>4</sup> Plaintiffs posit that the DPOC requirement “disproportionately affect[s] . . . not only Arizona voters who are naturalized citizens . . . but also those who are racial minorities, elderly, or recently turned 18 years old, because the law singles out for disparate treatment ‘federal only’ voters, who disproportionately have these characteristics.” (DNC Compl. ¶ 40.)

1 information and belief that the Systemic Alien Verification for Entitlements database 2 only contains information on naturalized and derived citizens, not citizens born in the 3 United States. (Poder Latinx Compl. ¶ 53.) Compounding the alleged risk of arbitrary and 4 inaccurate enforcement of the verification requirements, “[certain] of these databases
5 were [not] designed to capture or reflect current citizenship status.” (DNC Compl. ¶¶ 36– 6 37.) Plaintiffs relatedly allege that H.B. 2243’s “reason to believe” investigation criterion 7 “essentially allows anyone, without evidence, to simply give a list of names of people 8 who are purportedly not citizens to the county recorders, thus triggering a check that can 9 lead to improperly cancelled voter registrations and potential investigation and 10 prosecution of eligible and registered Arizonans.” (AAANHPI Compl. ¶ 86.)

11 Further, Plaintiffs assert that the Voting Laws intentionally target protected groups 12 for investigation, registration cancellation, and prosecution. “AANHPIs and other ethnic 13 groups. . . are disproportionately likely to lack the forms of identification required under 14 H.B. 2492 and H.B. 2243 to register to vote and remain on the voter rolls.” (Id. ¶ 90.)
15 And because AANHPIs and Latinos “comprise a large proportion of naturalized citizens 16 in Arizona and the population of AANHPIs and other ethnic groups in Arizona is rapidly
17 increasing, the birthplace, DPOC, and DPOR requirements imposed by [the Voting 18 Laws] on naturalized citizens has a disproportionate impact” on these protected groups.
19 (See id. ¶ 91 (11,000 Arizona residents naturalized each year between 2014 and 2020, 20 with the largest proportion from Mexico, followed by “Asiatic countries”); LUCHA 21 Compl. ¶ 156 (Voting Laws burden “eligible Latino and language minority voters”).) To 22 support their claim that this disparate impact is deliberate, Plaintiffs point to the allegedly 23 unsubstantiated statements of Representative Jake Hoffman, H.B. 2492’s sponsor, that 24 Arizona’s elections are compromised by fraud and count the votes of “non-U.S. citizen 25 voters.” (LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 201–02.) Plaintiffs also allege that H.B. 2243’s criterion for 26 enhanced scrutiny of a registrant—“reason to believe” that a registrant is not a United 27 States citizen—invites racial and national origin discrimination. (Poder Latinx Compl.
28 ¶¶ 7, 41; see AAANHPI Compl. ¶¶ 85–86, 88.)

3. Discriminatory Affirmation of Citizenship

Plaintiffs also take issue with the Check Box and Birthplace Requirements. (E.g. LUCHA Compl. ¶ 273; USA Compl. ¶¶ 57–61.) The United States alleges that by requiring election officials to reject a registration form without the requisite check mark when an applicant has already affirmed citizenship under penalty of perjury and provided DPOC, H.B. 2492 denies “qualified individuals the right to vote” based on an immaterial “technical[ity].” (USA Compl. ¶¶ 57–61.) Private Plaintiffs allege “on information and belief, the birthplace requirement will only be used to identify naturalized citizens for differential, unequal treatment by the state and will act to chill voter registration of AANHPIs, naturalized citizens, and other voters of color in a disproportionate manner.” (AAANHPI Compl. ¶ 94.) Relatedly, Plaintiffs contend that such added complexities of properly registering to vote risk disenfranchising “language minority” groups in Arizona, including Arizona’s naturalized Latino population. (LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 186–91.)

4. Discriminatory Documentary Proof of Residence

Plaintiffs assert that “because many residences on Indian reservations in Arizona lack a numbered street address or residential address, many enrolled members of tribes are likely to be prevented from voting by the DPOR requirement.” (Id. ¶ 29.) Indeed, Plaintiff San Carlos Apache Tribe alleges that on the San Carlos Apache Reservation, “many residences are not assigned a physical numbered street address. Instead, members of the Tribe commonly describe where they live using . . . mile markers on Route 70, Bureau of Indian Affairs’ Indian Routes, or other landmarks and distances.” (Id. ¶ 32.) The Tribe’s members often lack documents bearing their name and residential address and will be unable to satisfy H.B. 2492’s DPOR requirement. (Id. ¶ 35.) Plaintiffs add that the “experience for citizens of the San Carlos Apache is also the norm for many other Tribal citizens residing on the reservations of . . . other . . . Tribes in Arizona.”<sup>5</sup> (Id. ¶ 38.)

<sup>5</sup> In addition to specific protected groups that risk disenfranchisement under the Voting Laws, Plaintiffs claim that the DPOR requirement will prevent other Arizonans from voting. For example, students living and eligible to vote in Arizona often carry out of state drivers’ licenses and cannot pay to obtain an additional Arizona state identification. (LUCHA Compl. ¶ 241.) These would-be voters will be unable to meet the DPOR requirement. (Id.)

1 The DPOR requirement will consequently “burden a substantial portion of the Native
2 population in Arizona, and this burden will be unique when compared to other eligible
3 Arizona voters.”<sup>6</sup> (Id. ¶ 139.)

4 5. The Parties’ Interests

5 Plaintiffs claim that Arizona has no legitimate reason for the Birthplace 6 Requirement when individuals must already provide DPOC to vote in state elections, and 7 such unnecessary emphasis on national origin evidences the discriminatory intent behind 8 the Birthplace Requirement. (See AAANHPI Compl. ¶ 94.) Relatedly, Plaintiffs argue 9 that there is “no evidence of widespread voter fraud or non-U.S. citizen voting in 10 Arizona.” (LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 198–99.) Arizona cannot, according to Plaintiffs, identify 11 even a rational state interest served by “the DPOC requirement, Birthplace Requirement, 12 Checkmark Requirement, or the mandated use of outdated and incorrect citizenship data 13 to reject voter registration applications and purge eligible voters from the rolls.” (Id.
14 ¶ 197; see USA Compl. ¶¶ 49, 53–54.) Plaintiffs forecast that “the restrictions imposed 15 by HB 2492 and HB 2243 will not enhance electoral security. Instead, they will make 16 voter registration rolls less reliable, and will undermine the public’s confidence in 17 Arizona’s elections.” (LUCHA Compl. ¶ 204.)

18 All Plaintiffs have asserted interests against the enforcement of the Voting Laws.
19 Specifically, several Private Plaintiffs allege that implementation of the Voting Laws will 20 harm both the entities and their respective constituents. (See, e.g., AAANHPI Compl.
21 ¶¶ 101–12.) These Plaintiffs claim that the Voting Laws have forced and will force them 22 to divert organizational resources to “train [their] staff and volunteers on the new 23 regulations and educate potential voters, who often have limited English proficiency, on 24 the additional documentation required to register to vote.” (Id. ¶¶ 101–02.) Without the 25 alleged barriers to voting imposed by the Voting Laws, “Plaintiff[s] would have the 26 ability to use [their] limited resources in reaching out to more voters through . . . voter

27 <sup>6</sup> Plaintiffs also claim that H.B. 2492’s disproportionate impact on Native Americans is 28 intentional, in that the Arizona Legislature aims to repress the “increased political mobilization by Native voters” seen in the 2020 presidential election. (LUCHA Compl.
¶¶ 149–50.)

1 registration, mobilization, and participation efforts.” (Id. ¶ 102.) Further, certain Private 2 Plaintiffs assert that the Voting Laws will diminish the impact of their work, as some of 3 their constituents will be removed from voter rolls and deterred from voting or 4 registering. (Id. ¶¶ 101–05, 112.)

5 As for Defendants, they assert that the Voting Laws advance Arizona’s interest in 6 “reducing administrative burdens,” “securing its elections,” and “maintaining voter 7 confidence.” (Mot. at 16.)

8 D. Procedural History

9 On March 31, 2022, Mi Familia Vota Plaintiffs<sup>7</sup> filed their Complaint in this 10 Court. (Doc. 1, 03/31/2022 Mi Familia Vota Compl.) The United States and additional 11 Private Plaintiffs subsequently filed lawsuits attacking the legality of the Voting Laws.
12 These lawsuits have been consolidated into the instant case. (E.g. Doc. 164, 11/10/2022 13 Order re: Consolidation.) All Plaintiffs make at least one of the following claims: the 14 Voting Laws (1) place an undue burden on the right to vote, violating the First and 15 Fourteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution; (2) enable arbitrary and 16 disparate treatment of voters, violating the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth 17 Amendment (“Equal Protection Clause”); (3) enable national origin discrimination in 18 violation of the Fourteenth Amendment; (4) discriminate based on race, violating the 19 Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments; (5) deprive procedural due process (6) violate 20 § 10101 of the Civil Rights Act of 1964; (7) violate Sections 5, 6, and 8 of the NVRA; 21 and (8) violate the Voting Rights Act.

22 On September 16, 2022, Defendants<sup>8</sup> filed the Motion, to which Plaintiffs filed 23 their Oppositions on October 17, 2022. (Mot.; Doc. 150, Mi Familia Opp’n; Doc. 151, 24 Democratic National Committee Opp’n (“DNC Opp’n”); Doc. 152, United States Opp’n; 25 Doc. 153, Living United for Change in Arizona Opp’n (“LUCHA Opp’n”); Doc. 154, 26 <sup>7</sup> The Court references organizational Plaintiffs that have filed collectively under the 27 name of one organization. “LUCHA Plaintiffs,” for example, includes all additional 28 Plaintiffs that are named on the briefing with LUCHA.

<sup>8</sup> Plaintiffs also sued the Arizona Secretary of State and all Arizona County Recorders in their official capacities. (E.g., Mi Familia Vota Compl. ¶¶ 22, 24–39.) These Defendants did not join the Motion. (See Mot.)

1 Poder Latinx Opp'n; Doc. 89, 22-cv-1381, AAANHPI Opp'n.) Defendants filed their 2 Consolidated Reply on November 23, 2022. (Doc. 180, Reply.) The Court held oral 3 argument on the Motion on December 15, 2022. (Doc. 187, Min. Entry.)

4 II. LEGAL STANDARDS & ANALYSIS

5 Defendants argue that Plaintiffs lack standing to sue and bring unripe claims.
6 (Mot. at 9–13.) Defendants alternatively argue that Plaintiffs have failed to state claims 7 that the Voting Laws are unlawful. (Id. at 14–30.) The Court addresses each argument in 8 turn.

9 A. Rule 12(b)(1)

10 Rule 12(b)(1) allows parties to move to dismiss for lack of subject matter 11 jurisdiction. As courts of limited jurisdiction, federal courts may only hear cases as 12 permitted by Congress and the U.S. Constitution. See Kokkonen v. Guardian Life Ins.
13 Co., 511 U.S. 375, 377 (1994). Federal jurisdiction is therefore presumed absent until the 14 claimant demonstrates otherwise. Id. “A Rule 12(b)(1) jurisdictional attack may be facial 15 or factual.” Safe Air for Everyone v. Meyer, 373 F.3d 1035, 1039 (9th Cir. 2004). A facial 16 attack “assert[s] that the allegations contained in a complaint are insufficient on their face 17 to invoke federal jurisdiction.” Id. The court accepts the plaintiff’s allegations as true and 18 draws all reasonable inferences in the plaintiff’s favor. Leite v. Crane Co., 749 F.3d 1117, 19 1121 (9th Cir. 2014). From there, the court “determines whether the allegations are 20 sufficient as a legal matter to invoke the court’s jurisdiction.” Id. A factual attack 21 challenges the underlying factual allegations by introducing evidence beyond the 22 pleadings. Id. In either instance, the party asserting jurisdiction bears the burden of proof.
23 Indus. Tectonics, Inc. v. Aero Alloy, 912 F.2d 1090, 1092 (9th Cir. 1990).

24 1. Standing

25 Under Article III of the United States Constitution, a plaintiff does not have 26 standing unless it can show (1) an “injury in fact” that is concrete and particularized and 27 actual or imminent, not hypothetical; (2) that the injury is fairly traceable to the 28 challenged action of the defendant; and (3) that it is likely, as opposed to merely

1 speculative, that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision. See Lujan v. Defs. of 2 Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560–61 (1992) (cleaned up). “At the pleading stage, general 3 factual allegations of injury resulting from the defendant’s conduct may suffice[.]” Id. at 4 561. In cases for prospective injunctive relief, “past wrongs do not in themselves amount 5 to that real and immediate threat of injury necessary to make out a case or controversy.” 6 City of Los Angeles v. Lyons, 461 U.S. 95, 103 (1983). Rather, a plaintiff’s “standing to 7 seek the injunction requested depend[s] on whether he [is] likely to suffer future injury.”
8 Id. at 105. When addressing behavior that is alleged to increase the risk of future injury, 9 the future injury must be “certainly impending.” Clapper v. Amnesty Int’l, 568 U.S. 398, 10 409 (2013). Plaintiffs must establish standing “for each claim for relief.” Little Sisters of 11 the Poor Saints Peter & Paul Home v. Pennsylvania, 140 S. Ct. 2367, 2379 n.6 (2020).

12 “[A]n organization has direct standing to sue where it establishes that the 13 defendant’s behavior has frustrated its mission and caused it to divert resources in 14 response to that frustration of purpose.” E. Bay Sanctuary Covenant v. Biden, 993 F.3d 15 640, 663 (9th Cir. 2021) (citing Fair Hous. of Marin v. Combs, 285 F.3d 899, 905 (9th 16 Cir. 2002)). Organizations cannot “manufacture the injury by incurring litigation costs,” 17 but they can show standing when they “would have suffered some other injury had they 18 not diverted resources to counteracting the problem.” Id. (internal quotations omitted).
19 And even if the diversion-of-resources injury is “broadly alleged,” such allegations are 20 still “sufficient to establish organizational standing at the pleading stage.” Nat’l Council 21 of La Raza v. Cegavske, 800 F.3d 1032, 1040 (9th Cir. 2015) (citation omitted).
22 Moreover, “[o]nly one plaintiff needs to have standing when only injunctive relief is 23 sought.” DNC v. Reagan, 329 F. Supp. 3d 824, 841 (D. Ariz. 2018) (citing Crawford v.
24 Marion Cnty. Election Bd., 472 F.3d 949, 951 (7th Cir. 2007)) (finding standing where 25 Arizona Democratic Party and additional private plaintiffs requested injunctive and 26 declaratory relief against Arizona election law), aff’d sub nom. DNC v. Hobbs, 9 F.4th 27 1218, 1219 (9th Cir. 2021) (Mem.); Mecinas v. Hobbs, 30 F.4th 890, 897 (9th Cir. 2022) 28 (“In a suit with multiple plaintiffs, generally only one plaintiff need have standing for the

1 suit to proceed.”); c.f. We Are America/Somos America, Coal. of Arizona v. Maricopa
 2 Cnty. Bd. of Supervisors, 809 F. Supp. 2d 1084, 1091 (D. Ariz. 2011) (district court is not 3 “strictly prohibit[ed]” from considering multiple plaintiffs’ standing, despite “general 4 rule” on appeal that only one plaintiff need have standing).

5 Plaintiffs have standing to sue.<sup>9</sup> Defendants concede that the United States has 6 standing to bring its claims. (See Hr’g Tr. at 6:22–7:3.) Private Plaintiffs have also 7 established organizational standing. LUCHA Plaintiffs plausibly allege that the Voting 8 Laws will force LUCHA, which has previously conducted voter registration and 9 education activities and plans to continue these activities in the future, to “divert money, 10 personnel, time, and resources away from other activities” as a result of the requirements 11 imposed by the Voting Laws. (LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 214–16, 223–24.) LUCHA also serves 12 naturalized citizens, and as explained below Plaintiffs have plausibly alleged that this 13 group will be disproportionately disenfranchised under the Voting Laws. (Id. ¶¶ 211–13; 14 infra II(B)(1)(a), (2)(a).) LUCHA anticipates not only that some its “assisted voters” will 15 be prevented from voting by the Voting Laws’ DPOC and DPOR requirements, but also 16 that many of the individuals it seeks to mobilize will be “intimidated and discouraged 17 from registering to vote, even though they are eligible, because of the unconstitutional 18 limits imposed on the exercise of their franchise by H.B. 2492 and H.B. 2243.” (LUCHA 19 Compl. ¶¶ 218–19.) LUCHA has standing to sue. See Reagan, 329 F. Supp. 3d at 841 20 (finding standing where “the new law injures the [organizational plaintiff] by compelling 21 [it] to devote resources to getting to the polls those of its supporters who would otherwise 22 be discouraged by the new law from bothering to vote.” (citation omitted)). The Court 23 need not assess whether additional Plaintiffs have standing.

24 2. Ripeness

25 Defendants also argue that Plaintiffs’ claims are constitutionally and prudentially 26 unripe. (Mot. at 12–14.) A claim is constitutionally ripe when a plaintiff’s injury is

27 _____
 28 <sup>9</sup> Defendants argue that Plaintiffs’ claims are not redressable through the instant suit, as Plaintiffs have not named any County Recorders as Defendants. (Mot. at 2, 11–12.) All Arizona County Recorders are now named as Defendants in this action.

1 “definite and concrete, not hypothetical or abstract.” Thomas v. Anchorage Equal Rights 2 Comm’n, 220 F.3d 1134, 1139 (9th Cir. 2000) (en banc) (citation omitted). When 3 evaluating the existence of a definite injury, courts consider whether “plaintiffs have 4 articulated a concrete plan to violate the law in question, whether the prosecuting 5 authorities have communicated a specific warning or threat to initiate proceedings, and 6 the history of past prosecution or enforcement under the challenged statute.” Id. (internal 7 quotation marks and citation omitted). Under the last prong, “the government’s active 8 enforcement of a statute [may] render . . . the plaintiff’s fear [of injury] . . . reasonable.”
9 Id. at 1140. To minimize any chilling effect from an unwarranted First Amendment 10 restriction, the Ninth Circuit has “applied the requirements of ripeness and standing less 11 stringently in the context of First Amendment claims.” Wolfson v. Brammer, 616 F.3d 12 1045, 1058 (9th Cir. 2010).

13 Plaintiffs’ claims are constitutionally ripe. Though Plaintiffs do not per se plan to 14 violate the Voting Laws, certain Plaintiffs plausibly allege that their members risk 15 violating the Voting Laws as an incident of inadequate access to DPOR or DPOC.<sup>10</sup> 16 (LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 274–85.) Further, as detailed in the surrounding analysis, Plaintiffs 17 plausibly allege that enforcement of the Voting Laws will “imminently” harm their 18 organizational missions. C.f. Protectmarriage.com-Yes on 8 v. Bowen, 752 F.3d 827, 839 19 (9th Cir. 2014) (citation omitted) (even preenforcement claim may be ripe where 20 plaintiffs “confront a realistic danger of sustaining direct injury as a result of the statute’s 21 operation or enforcement”); (see Poder Latinx Opp’n at 4.) And contrary to Defendants’ 22 claims, the Court has no reason believe that the Voting Laws will not be enforced. (See 23 Mot. at 12–13 (“Plaintiffs have not alleged any ‘genuine threat of imminent 24 enforcement’”).) Plaintiffs’ injuries are at least reasonably anticipated, not just 25 hypothetical or “theoretically possible.” See Bowen, 752 F.3d at 839–40.

26 Plaintiff’s claims are also prudentially ripe. A claim is prudentially ripe when “the 27 <sup>10</sup> AAANHPI raises that the ripeness inquiry is limited to its prudential component when 28 a plaintiff is not “the target of enforcement.” (AAANHPI Opp’n at 4 (citing San Luis & Delta-Mendoza Water Auth. v. Salazar, 638 F.3d 1163, 1173 (9th Cir. 2011)).) This only underscores the Court’s conclusion that Plaintiffs’ claims are ripe.

1 fitness of the issues for judicial decision and the hardship to the parties of withholding 2 court consideration” both weigh toward hearing the case. See Ass’n of Irrigated Residents
3 v. EPA, 10 F.4th 937, 944 (9th Cir. 2021) (citing Abbott Labs. v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 4 149 (1967)). This case primarily hinges on legal issues—preemption under the NVRA, 5 the ability of Congress to regulate presidential elections, the relative burden of Arizona’s 6 citizenship verification requirements vis-à-vis other requirements previously evaluated by 7 the Supreme Court—and discovery will provide any factual development necessary to 8 fully evaluate the merits of the case. See id. (challenge prudentially ripe where issue was 9 “purely [a] legal question”); (Poder Latinx Opp’n at 4–6). Moreover, delaying review 10 until after certain Plaintiffs have already been unlawfully removed from Arizona’s voting 11 rolls and prevented from voting would make any review “too late to redress the injuries 12 suffered by [Plaintiffs’] members.” Ass’n of Irrigated Residents, 10 F.4th at 944. The 13 Court concludes that Plaintiffs’ claims are ripe for review.

14 B. Rule 12(b)(6)

15 A Rule 12(b)(6) dismissal for failure to state a claim can be based on either (1) a 16 lack of cognizable legal theory or (2) insufficient facts to support a cognizable legal 17 claim. Conservation Force v. Salazar, 646 F.3d 1240, 1242 (9th Cir. 2011). In 18 determining whether an asserted claim can be sustained, “[a]ll of the facts alleged in the 19 complaint are presumed true, and the pleadings are construed in the light most favorable 20 to the nonmoving party.” Bates v. Mortg. Elec. Registration Sys., Inc., 694 F.3d 1076, 21 1080 (9th Cir. 2012). At this early stage of the litigation, the standard does not mandate 22 that “plaintiff’s explanation . . . be true or even probable.” Starr v. Baca, 652 F.3d 1202, 23 1216–17 (9th Cir. 2011). However, “for a complaint to survive a motion to dismiss, the 24 nonconclusory ‘factual content,’ and reasonable inferences from that content, must be 25 plausibly suggestive of a claim entitling the plaintiff to relief.” Moss v. U.S. Secret Serv., 26 572 F.3d 962, 969 (9th Cir. 2009) (quoting Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009)).
27 In other words, the complaint must contain enough factual content “to raise a reasonable 28 expectation that discovery will reveal evidence” of the claim. Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 1 550 U.S. 544, 556 (2007).

2 Defendants argue that Plaintiffs have failed to plausibly allege that the Voting
3 Laws are unlawful under either constitutional or statutory frameworks. (Mot. at 14–30.)

4 1. Anderson-Burdick Claims

5 Under the Anderson-Burdick framework, courts evaluate the validity of an election 6 law by balancing the burden the law places on the fundamental right to vote against the 7 state interests served by the law. See Anderson v. Celebrezze, 460 U.S. 780, 789 (1983).
8 Specifically, courts must “consider the character and magnitude of the asserted injury to 9 the rights protected by the First and Fourteenth Amendments that the plaintiff seeks to 10 vindicate”; “identify and evaluate the precise interests put forward by the [s]tate as 11 justifications for the burden imposed by its rule”; “determine the legitimacy and strength 12 of each of those interests”; and “consider the extent to which those interests make it 13 necessary to burden the plaintiff’s rights.” Id.

14 “[T]he severity of the burden the election law imposes on the plaintiff’s rights 15 dictates the level of scrutiny applied by the court.” Nader v. Brewer, 531 F.3d 1028, 1034 16 (9th Cir. 2008) (citing Burdick v. Takushi, 504 U.S. 428, 434 (1992)). “Regulations 17 imposing severe burdens on plaintiffs’ rights must be narrowly tailored and advance a 18 compelling state interest. Lesser burdens, however, trigger less exacting review, and a 19 State’s important regulatory interests will usually be enough to justify reasonable, 20 nondiscriminatory restrictions.” Pierce v. Jacobsen, 44 F.4th 853, 859–60 (9th Cir. 2022)
21 (quoting Timmons v. Twin Cities Area New Party, 520 U.S. 351, 358 (1997)). A 22 restriction is “not severe” when it is “generally applicable, even-handed, politically 23 neutral, and . . . protect[s] the reliability and integrity of the election process.” Rubin v.
24 City of Santa Monica, 308 F.3d 1008, 1014 (9th Cir. 2002). This balance means that 25 voting regulations are rarely subjected to strict scrutiny. See Lemons v. Bradbury, 538 26 F.3d 1098, 1104 (9th Cir. 2008).

27 Plaintiffs assert that the Voting Laws place an undue burden on the right to vote in 28 several ways. Defendants counter that Plaintiffs have failed to state claims under the

1 Anderson-Burdick doctrine because “the burdens involved [in complying with the Voting 2 Laws] are not significant” and are “justified by the State’s compelling interests.” (Mot. at 3 14.) The Court disagrees with Defendants.

4 a. Burden on Identifiable Segment of Voters

5 Plaintiffs make several plausible claims that the Voting Laws “place a particular 6 burden on an identifiable segment of voters [which is] more likely to raise constitutional 7 concerns.” Ariz. Democratic Party v. Hobbs, 18 F.4th 1179, 1190 (9th Cir. 2021) (Mem)
8 (“Hobbs III”) (citing Anderson, 460 U.S. at 792). For example, the San Carlos Apache 9 Tribe alleges that a significant number of its 11,000 members in Arizona “are likely to be 10 unable to obtain [DPOR], as required by H.B. 2492, either because their residence lacks a 11 numbered street address entirely, or because they are not officially listed as a resident of 12 the home where they stay.” (LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 284, 312; LUCHA Opp’n at 2–4.) The 13 alleged effect of the DPOR requirement on Tribal members “will be unique when 14 compared to other eligible Arizona voters . . . giving [Tribal members] less opportunity 15 than other eligible Arizona voters to participate in the political process and elect 16 representatives of their choice.” (LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 137, 139; see also AAANHPI 17 Compl. ¶¶ 117–18 (Voting Laws’ DPOC requirement and verification particularly burden 18 “AANHPIs, naturalized citizens, and other voters of color.”); Mi Familia Vota Compl.
19 ¶ 79.) Plaintiffs additionally allege that the Voting Laws undermine public confidence in 20 Arizona’s elections and draw upon legislative history to claim that the Voting Laws were 21 intended to discriminate against certain protected groups. (E.g., LUCHA Compl. ¶ 326; 22 AAANHPI Compl. ¶¶ 53–54.) Relatedly, Plaintiffs allege that Arizona has no legitimate 23 interest in the mandates underlying the Voting Laws. (AAANHPI Compl. ¶¶ 116–17; 24 LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 195–97, 325; DNC Compl. ¶ 46.) Plaintiffs have stated a claim that 25 the Voting Laws impose a burden on the right to vote without a corresponding 26 justification.

27 b. Arbitrary State and Federal Form Distinction

28 Plaintiffs also plausibly allege, both within the Anderson-Burdick framework and

1 under the traditional Equal Protection framework,<sup>11</sup> that H.B. 2492 arbitrarily treats
2 registrants differently depending on whether they used the Federal or State Form.
3 (LUCHA Opp’n at 7–8; LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 309, 313; e.g., Mi Familia Vota Compl.
4 ¶¶ 89–90.) In other words, Plaintiffs have stated a claim that the Voting Laws are not 5 “generally applicable.” See Rubin, 308 F.3d at 1014.

6 LUCHA Plaintiffs detail that the Voting Laws violate the LULAC Consent Decree 7 and arbitrarily prevent State Form users who did not provide DPOC from voting in any 8 election, while Federal Form users who did not provide DPOC may still vote in 9 congressional elections. (LUCHA Opp’n. at 8.) Federal and State Form users are not 10 suspect classes, so the State need only show that there is a rational basis for 11 discriminating against State Form users. See McDonald v. Bd. of Election Com’rs of 12 Chicago, 394 U.S. 802, 808–09 (1969) (“The [race- and wealth-neutral] distinctions 13 drawn by a challenged statute must bear some rational relationship to a legitimate state 14 end and will be set aside as violative of the Equal Protection Clause only if based on 15 reasons totally unrelated to the pursuit of that goal.”); Weber v. Shelley, 347 F.3d 1101, 16 1107 n.2 (9th Cir. 2003). It is undisputed that a State Form applicant who did not provide 17 DPOC will be barred from voting at all, whereas a Federal Form registrant will be 18 allowed to vote in certain federal elections. (LUCHA Opp’n at 7.) Both Federal and 19 State Form users have affirmed citizenship under penalty of perjury. (Id. at 8.)
20 Defendants counter that requiring DPOC and DPOR from State Form users increases 21 “confiden[ce]” that registrants “are indeed U.S. citizens and reside in the districts in 22

23 <sup>11</sup> Poder Latinx Plaintiffs similarly claim that the Voting Laws subject registrants to 24 “arbitrary and disparate treatment,” but they rely on the Equal Protection standard 25 articulated in Bush v. Gore, 531 U.S. 98, 104–09 (2000) to assert this claim. (Poder 26 Latinx Compl. ¶¶ 120–29.) The Motion does not directly address this claim. (See Mot.; 27 Poder Latinx Opp’n at 9.) Instead, Defendants generally assert that any Equal Protection 28 challenges to the Voting Laws pled outside of the Anderson-Burdick framework are improperly presented to the Court. (Mot. at 17.) However, the authority Defendants cite for this assertion does not foreclose constitutional claims pled outside of the Anderson-
Burdick framework. (See id. at 17–18 (citing Dudum v. Arntz, 640 F.3d 1098, 1106 n.15 (9th Cir. 2011) (observing that the Supreme Court “has addressed [First Amendment, Due Process, and Equal Protection claims] collectively using a single analytic framework” but noting that plaintiff did not suggest separate analyses for his claims beyond Anderson-Burdick)).)

1 which they intend to cast a vote.” (See Mot. at 18–19.) But Defendants do not offer any 2 basis for preventing State Form applicants from voting at all without DPOC. (See id.)

3 Plaintiffs seem to disagree regarding whether this discrimination claim is analyzed 4 under the Anderson-Burdick framework. (Compare MFV Opp’n at 5–6 (analyzing 5 disparate treatment of Federal and State Form users under Anderson-Burdick) with 6 LUCHA Opp’n at 7 (separately analyzing disparate treatment claim).) The Court 7 concludes that Plaintiffs have stated a claim that the Voting Laws arbitrarily discriminate
 8 based on use of Federal or State Forms under either framework.<sup>12</sup>

9 c. Fact-Sensitive Inquiry

10 The procedural posture of this case also weighs against granting the Motion.
 11 Plaintiffs correctly note that because Anderson-Burdick claims are particularly fact-12 sensitive, dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6) is disfavored. (LUCHA Opp’n at 4; MFV Opp’n 13 at 2–3); see, e.g., Soltysik v. Padilla, 910 F.3d 438, 447, 450 (9th Cir. 2018) (reversing 14 “premature” grant of dismissal, as court could not determine “without any factual record .
 15 . . [whether the state’s] justifications outweigh the constitutional burdens”); Mecinas, 30 16 F.4th at 905 (“[T]he magnitude of the asserted injury [under Anderson-Burdick]. . .
 17 present[s] factual questions that cannot be resolved on a motion to dismiss.”). Defendants 18 also cite Crawford v. Marion County to argue that requiring voter identification to vote is 19 not an undue burden as a matter of law. (See Mot. at 15–16 (citing 553 U.S. 181, 185, 20 199 (2008)).) Plaintiffs counter not only that the law upheld in Crawford provided for 21 alternative ways to vote without the requisite identification, but also that Crawford 22 addressed Anderson-Burdick claims on summary judgment. (LUCHA Opp’n at 4 n.6; see 23 also AAANHPI Opp’n at 8); 553 U.S. at 185, 187, 201. Defendants have not brought any 24 identical state laws upheld under Anderson-Burdick to the Court’s attention, nor is the 25 Court aware of any. The Court will not dismiss Plaintiffs’ Anderson-Burdick claims.

26 2. Additional Constitutional Claims

27 <sup>12</sup> Applying a traditional Equal Protection analysis, Plaintiffs must plausibly allege that 28 there is no rational basis for Arizona’s distinction between Federal and State Form users voting in federal elections. (See LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 86, 328.) Plaintiffs have met their burden to do so. (See LUCHA Opp’n at 8.)

1 national origin separately demands strict scrutiny. Short, 893 F.3d at 678–79 (applying 2 Anderson-Burdick). Plaintiffs have stated a claim that naturalized citizens will incur such 3 a burden solely by virtue of their birthplace.

4 Defendants attempt to counter Plaintiffs’ claims of national origin discrimination
5 by arguing that Plaintiffs have not adequately alleged discriminatory intent. (Mot. at 20– 6 22.) As above explained, Plaintiffs have stated a claim that the Voting Laws are facially 7 unconstitutional, which does not require a finding of discriminatory intent. (See LUCHA 8 Opp’n at 6–7); Mitchell v. Washington, 818 F.3d 436, 445–46 (9th Cir. 2016) (“When the 9 government expressly classifies persons on the bases of race or national origin . . . its 10 action is ‘immediately suspect’. . . . A plaintiff in such a lawsuit need not make an 11 extrinsic showing of discriminatory animus or a discriminatory effect to trigger strict 12 scrutiny.”) (alterations in original) (citation omitted)); Walker v. Gomez, 370 F.3d 969, 13 974 (9th Cir. 2004) (plaintiff need not prove discriminatory intent or impact when policy 14 is suspect on its face) (citing Loving v. Virginia, 388 U.S. 1, 8–9 (1967)).

15 In any event, the Court alternatively finds that Plaintiffs have adequately alleged 16 discriminatory intent such that they have stated a claim that the Voting Laws were 17 “motivated by” a discriminatory purpose. See Vill. of Arlington Heights v. Metro. Hous.
18 Dev. Corp., 429 U.S. 252, 265–66, 269 (1977); (AAANHPI Opp’n at 13–15). “The 19 central inquiry in any disparate treatment claim under the Equal Protection Clause is 20 whether an invidious discriminatory purpose was a motivating factor in some government 21 action.” Ballou v. McElvain, 29 F.4th 413, 424 (9th Cir. 2022) (cleaned up). “[A]ny 22 indication of discriminatory motive may suffice’ to allow a disparate treatment claim to 23 survive summary judgment.” Id. (emphasis and alteration in original) (quoting Arce v.
24 Douglas, 793 F.3d 968, 978 (9th Cir. 2015)).

25 The Supreme Court articulated the following, non-exhaustive factors that a 26 court should consider in assessing whether a defendant acted with 27 discriminatory purpose: (1) the impact of the official action and whether it 28 bears more heavily on one race than another; (2) the historical background of the decision; (3) the specific sequence of events leading to the challenged action; (4) the defendant’s departures from normal procedures or substantive conclusions; and (5) the relevant legislative or administrative history.

1 Arce, 973 F.3d at 977.

2 Plaintiffs point to the reduction in response time to provide DPOC between the 3 previous version of H.B. 2243 (90 days) and H.B. 2243 as enacted (35 days) as evidence 4 of the legislature’s intention to target naturalized citizens. (See AAANHPI Compl. ¶¶ 17– 5 18, 60.) Plaintiffs also raise the comments made by H.B. 2942’s sponsor regarding 6 immigrant voters, as well as the bill’s passage over advice of legislative counsel that the 7 statute would be preempted by the NVRA, as evidence of discriminatory intent in 8 legislation. (Poder Latinx Compl. ¶ 48 (detailing statements from bill sponsors that 9 intention of the Voting Laws was to overrule LULAC Consent Decree and ensure 10 noncitizens are not voting in Arizona elections).) Plaintiffs have stated a claim that the 11 Voting Laws intentionally subject naturalized citizens to increased burdens, up to and 12 including complete disenfranchisement, violating the Equal Protection Clause.<sup>13</sup>

13 Second, Plaintiffs allege that the Voting Laws discriminate based on race, 14 violating both the Equal Protection Clause and the Fifteenth Amendment.<sup>14</sup> (See 15 AAANHPI Compl. ¶¶ 143–50; Poder Latinx Compl. ¶¶ 107–18.) The Fifteenth 16 Amendment establishes that “[t]he right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not 17 be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or 18 previous condition of servitude.” U.S. Const. amend XV. A plaintiff must allege “actual 19 interference in the voting or registration processes” on account of race to state a claim for 20 Fifteenth Amendment violation. See Skorepa v. City of Chula Vista, 723 F. Supp. 1384, 21 1393 (S.D. Cal. 1989) (citation omitted).

22 <sup>13</sup> Amicus curiae Immigration Reform Law Institute raises that “[d]etermining whether 23 invidious discriminatory purpose was a motivating factor demands a sensitive inquiry 24 into such circumstantial and direct evidence as may be available.” (Doc. 131-1, IRLI 25 Amicus Br. at 15 (quoting Arlington Heights, 429 U.S. at 266).) The fact-sensitive nature 26 of invidious discrimination claims further weighs against granting the Motion.

27 <sup>14</sup> Poder Latinx Plaintiffs correctly note that the Motion does not address their claim that 28 the Voting Laws violate the Fifteenth Amendment under Louisiana v. United States, 380 U.S. 145 (1965). (Poder Latinx Opp’n at 10.) Defendants argue in Reply that the unconstitutional action in Louisiana is distinguishable from the Voting Laws, in that Louisiana struck down a voting requirement administered “without any controls on official discretion, placing arbitrary power in the hands of election officials.” (Reply at 17 n.9.) But Plaintiffs have plausibly alleged that, inter alia, H.B. 2243’s “reason to believe” investigation criterion similarly gives election officials “arbitrary power” to purge registered voters. See Louisiana, 380 U.S. at 153; (Poder Latinx Compl. ¶ 111.)

1 Plaintiffs’ claims survive the Motion. LUCHA Plaintiffs describe Arizona’s 2 extended history of denying the franchise to Native Americans and plausibly connect this 3 history to H.B. 2492’s DPOR requirement. (See LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 164–69, 176–77.)
4 AAANHPI asserts that by imposing the DPOR, DPOC, and Birthplace Requirements, 5 “and removing voters from the rolls if such information is not provided or is questioned, 6 Sections 1, 3, 4, 5, 7, and 8 of H.B. 2492 intentionally discriminate against AANHPIs, 7 naturalized citizens from those communities, and other voters of color, in violation of the 8 Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments.” (AAANHPI Compl. ¶ 148.) AAANHPI makes 9 similar allegations regarding H.B. 2243. (Id. ¶ 150.) Poder Latinx asserts that H.B. 2243
10 is “in essence, a redeployment of [Jim Crow-era] unconstitutional registration practices 11 involving the unfettered discretion of officials to revoke voting rights and arbitrarily 12 allocate the right to vote, with particular harm falling on naturalized voters and, in 13 particular, Latinx voters throughout Arizona.” (Poder Latinx Compl. ¶ 116.) The Court 14 finds that Plaintiffs have stated a claim that the Voting Laws are racially discriminatory 15 in violation of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments.

16 b. Procedural Due Process

17 Multiple Private Plaintiffs claim that the Voting Laws deny procedural due 18 process. (See, e.g., AAANHPI Compl. ¶¶ 135–41; Poder Latinx Compl. ¶¶ 133–44; 19 Poder Latinx Opp’n at 7–9.) Defendants counter that any “freestanding” procedural due 20 process claims are “squarely foreclosed by Ninth Circuit precedent.” (Mot. at 16–17 21 (citing Hobbs III, 18 F.4th at 1195).) Defendants are correct. See Hobbs III, 18 F.4th at 22 1195 (holding that the Anderson-Burdick framework is “better suited to the context of 23 election laws than is the more general Eldridge test”); Ariz. Democratic Party v. Hobbs, 24 976 F.3d 1081, 1086 n.1 (9th Cir. 2020) (observing that district court likely erred in 25 accepting “plaintiffs’ novel procedural due process argument” when Anderson-Burdick 26 should supersede any other framework). To the extent Plaintiffs assert procedural due 27 process claims distinct from their Anderson-Burdick claims, the Court grants the Motion 28 as to these “freestanding” claims. However, certain Plaintiffs’ procedural due process

1 claims survive the Motion, as they are included in allegations that the Voting Laws
 2 impose an undue burden under Anderson-Burdick. (See, e.g., MFV Compl. ¶¶ 3, 62–69, 3 79 (alleging that H.B. 2492 severely burdens the right to vote by, inter alia, threatening 4 voters with registration cancellation and criminal investigation without adequate notice 5 and time to respond); AAANHPI Compl. ¶ 136; AAANHPI Opp’n at 10 (explaining that 6 its procedural due process claim is alleged within the Anderson-Burdick framework).)

7 3. National Voter Registration Act

8 Plaintiffs allege that the Voting Laws violate multiple sections of the NVRA. The 9 NVRA sets parameters for the federal election process and bars states “from requiring a 10 Federal Form applicant to submit information beyond that required by the form itself.” 11 Inter-Tribal Council, 570 U.S. at 20 (striking down under the NVRA Arizona’s 12 requirement that Federal Form applicants submit DPOC).

13 As a general argument for dismissal of all Plaintiffs’ NVRA claims, Defendants 14 assert that because the Voting Laws only regulate presidential elections rather than all 15 federal elections, the NVRA does not apply. (See Mot. at 3, 23.) Citing Article I Section 16 4 of the United States Constitution, Defendants argue that the NVRA “can [only] apply 17 constitutionally to ‘Elections for Senators and Representatives.’” (Id. at 23.) But 18 Plaintiffs point out that there is no “carve-out” in H.B. 2243 for Federal Form users—on 19 its face, H.B. 2243 allows election officials to purge individuals lawfully registered to 20 vote using the Federal Form. (See AAANHPI Opp’n at 6.) And further, contrary to 21 Defendants’ suggestions, Plaintiffs have at least plausibly alleged that the NVRA applies 22 to presidential elections.<sup>15</sup> C.f. Mattioda v. Bridenstine, No. 20-cv-03662-SVK, 2021 WL 23 75665, at *18 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 8, 2021) (assuming without deciding that a claim exists, 24 where case is on motion to dismiss and Ninth Circuit has not spoken to the issue); see 25 also Voting Rights Coal. v. Wilson, 60 F.3d 1411, 1414 (9th Cir. 1995) (“The broad 26 power given to Congress over congressional elections has been extended to presidential 28 <sup>15</sup> The United States details the history surrounding the Elections Clause to explain why Presidential elections may have been omitted but why the NVRA still applies to presidential elections. (USA Opp’n at 8.)

1 elections”); (USA Opp’n at 5 (“An unbroken line of precedent confirms Congress’s
 2 power to regulate all federal elections, including those for president.”); AAANHPI Opp’n
 3 at 6 (citing Oregon v. Mitchell, 400 U.S. 112, 124 & n.6 (1970) (“It cannot be seriously
 4 contended that Congress has less power over the conduct of presidential elections than it 5 has over congressional elections.”)), n.6 (detailing codified finding accompanying the 6 NVRA regarding “discriminatory and unfair registration [harming] racial minorities.”).)

7 a. Section 5

8 Section 5 of the NVRA mandates that voter registration applications included with 9 driver’s license applications “may only require the minimum amount of information 10 necessary to enable State election officials to assess eligibility of the applicant . . . .” 52 11 U.S.C. § 20504(c)(2)(B). This “minimum” means an “an attestation that the applicant 12 meets each such requirement [of citizenship],” with “signature of the applicant, under 13 penalty of perjury.” Id. § 20504(c)(2)(C)(i)–(iii). The DNC alleges that by requiring 14 Federal Form users to submit DPOC in order to vote in presidential elections, H.B. 2492
 15 violates Section 5 of the NVRA. (See DNC Compl. ¶¶ 80–83.) The DNC argues that 16 Defendants failed to address this specific claim in the Motion. (DNC Opp’n at 8.) The 17 Court finds no indication otherwise. (See Mot.) Plaintiffs have stated a claim that the 18 Voting Laws are preempted by Section 5 of the NVRA.

19 b. Section 6

20 Plaintiffs allege that H.B. 2492’s DPOC requirement violates the mandate of 21 Section 6 of the NVRA that states “accept and use” the Federal Form to register 22 individuals for all federal elections. See 52 U.S.C. § 20505(a); (e.g., DNC Compl. ¶¶ 70– 23 72; DNC Opp’n at 5.)

24 Plaintiffs have plausibly alleged that the Voting Laws are preempted by Section 6.
 25 (See AAANHPI Compl. ¶¶ 160, 168.) Plaintiffs argue that under Inter Tribal Council, 26 “[f]ederal-only voters must be permitted to vote in all federal elections, including 27 presidential elections, so long as those voters submit a complete and valid Federal Form.”
 28 (USA Opp’n at 6) (emphasis in original). Like the law found preempted in Inter Tribal

1 Council, Plaintiffs allege that the Voting Laws require Federal Form users to provide 2 “every additional piece of information the State requires on its state-specific form. If that 3 is so, the Federal Form ceases to perform any meaningful function, and would be a feeble 4 means of ‘increas[ing] the number of eligible citizens who register to vote in elections for 5 Federal office.’” Inter Tribal Council, 570 U.S. at 13 (alteration in original) (citing 6 § 1973gg(b)). Plaintiffs have stated a claim that the Voting Laws are preempted by 7 Section 6 of the NVRA.

8 c. Section 8

9 Section 8 of the NVRA, in relevant part, requires that any state program to 10 “protect the integrity of the electoral process” by maintaining an accurate registration roll 11 for federal elections “be uniform, nondiscriminatory, and in compliance with the Voting 12 Rights Act of 1965” (“Uniformity Provision”). 52 U.S.C. § 20507(b)(1). It also mandates 13 that States “complete, not later than 90 days prior to the date of a primary or general 14 election for Federal office, any program the purpose of which is to systematically remove 15 the names of ineligible voters from the official lists of eligible voters” (“Purge 16 Provision”). Id. § 20507(c)(2)(A).

17 The DNC alleges that H.B. 2492 violates the Uniformity Provision by excluding 18 Federal Form users who did not provide DPOC from voting by mail or in Presidential 19 elections. (See DNC Compl. ¶¶ 73–78.) LUCHA Plaintiffs make the same allegation 20 regarding H.B. 2492’s DPOR requirement. (LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 356, 358; see also DNC 21 Opp’n at 9.) Taking the allegations in the Complaints as true, the Court finds that 22 Plaintiffs have stated a claim that the Voting Laws violate the Uniformity Provision. (See 23 DNC Opp’n at 9–10.) And though Defendants counter that the Voting Laws have no 24 mandate that registrants shall continue to be purged from the rolls through the 90-period 25 preceding an election, the Voting Laws do not qualify when election officials can and 26 cannot purge registrants from the rolls. (See H.B. 2492 § 8; H.B. 2243 § 2; AAANHPI 27 Compl. ¶¶ 171–72.) At this stage of litigation, the statutes’ broad directive to purge 28 registrants, without any limit as to when this purge should cease, suffices to state a claim

1 for violation of the Purge Provision. (See DNC Opp’n at 10.)

2 4. Section 10101

3 The Materiality Provision of Section 10101 (“Materiality Provision”) forbids 4 states from denying “the right of any individual to vote in any election because of an 5 error or omission on any record or paper relating to any application, registration, or other 6 act requisite to voting, if such error or omission is not material in determining whether 7 such individual is qualified under State law to vote in such election.” 52 U.S.C.
8 § 10101(a)(2)(B). The United States explains that “[t]he Materiality Provision 9 specifically covers registration.” (USA Opp’n at 4 (citing §§ 10101(a)(3)(A), (e)).) In 10 Arizona, such qualifications are age of majority, citizenship, residency, ability to write 11 one’s name or make one’s mark, and lack of criminal convictions or adjudications 12 rendering the voter incapacitated. Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 16-101.

13 The United States argues that multiple provisions of H.B. 2492 mandate voter 14 purges due to immaterial omissions or errors by registrants. The Birthplace Requirement, 15 the United States asserts, is immaterial to a voter’s eligibility, as naturalized citizens are 16 born outside of the United States and still carry the citizenship necessary to vote in 17 Arizona. (USA Opp’n at 18–19.) Conversely, individuals born in the United States might 18 not be American citizens, whether through foreign diplomatic parentage or expatriation.
19 (Id. at 19.) Failure to comply with the Check Box Requirement would similarly 20 disqualify applicants who have previously provided DPOC and met every other 21 requirement for verification of citizenship. (Id. at 19; USA Compl. ¶ 59.)

22 Defendants counter that there is no private right of action under § 10101 and that, 23 in any event, the information solicited under the Voting Laws is “material to ascertaining 24 eligibility to vote and thus cannot run afoul of Section 10101.” (Mot. at 3, 25, 28.) 25 Specifically, Defendants assert that a cause of action under § 1983 “is not available if 26 Congress ‘did not intend that remedy’ for the statutory right in question.” (Id. at 25 27 (citing City of Rancho Palos Verdes v. Abrams, 544 U.S. 113, 120 (2005)).) Defendants 28 also argue that the Materiality Provision does not “dictate the substance of state law,” as

1 Congress’s concerns in the Provision “c[a]me not from discriminatory laws,” but ““from 2 the discriminatory application and administration of apparently nondiscriminatory laws.””
3 (See id. at 26 (citing H.R. Rep. No. 88914 (Nov. 20, 1963), 1964 U.S.C. § 2391, 2491).)

4 As this stage of litigation, the Court disagrees with Defendants. Before the passage
5 of the Voting Laws, the state of Arizona used other methods to verify a registrant’s 6 citizenship, suggesting that the Voting Laws’ “confirmation” measures are not necessary.
7 (See USA Opp’n at 19; USA Compl. ¶ 49.) And the United States points out that the 8 Materiality Provision forbids “election officials from denying the right to vote based on 9 errors and omissions not material to voter qualifications,” “target[ing] all state conduct 10 that denies the right to vote based on immaterial errors or omissions.” (USA Opp’n at 14)
11 (emphasis in original). No party disputes that citizenship itself is material to a voter’s 12 qualifications, but the United States persuasively argues that materiality may mean more 13 than relevance in this context. (Id. at 17, 17 n.6.) The United States has plausibly alleged 14 that H.B. 2492 requires duplicative information from registrants that is “unnecessary and 15 therefore not material to determining an individual’s qualifications to vote” under 16 Arizona law.<sup>16</sup> See La Union del Pueblo Entero v. Abbott, 604 F. Supp. 3d 512, 542 17 (W.D. Tex. 2022). The United States has stated a claim that H.B. 2492 violates the 18 Materiality Provision.<sup>17</sup> (See USA Opp’n at 11–20.)

19 The Court also finds that Private Plaintiffs have stated a claim that the Voting 20 Laws violate § 10101. Similar to the application of the NVRA to presidential elections, 21 the Court need not decide whether there is a private right of action under § 10101 on a 22 motion to dismiss. While the Ninth Circuit has not spoken to this issue, Plaintiffs have 23 cited persuasive authority from within this Circuit indicating that there is such a private

24 _____
25 <sup>16</sup> The Court agrees with the United States that the text of the Materiality Provision does 26 not indicate the Provision only concerns “ad hoc executive actions that exceed state law.”
(USA Opp’n at 13–14; see Mot. at 26.) Nor do the cases Defendants cite for this 27 argument support their reading of the Materiality Provision.

28 <sup>17</sup> Defendants also argue that because Arizona voters may cure any error in their registrations before H.B. 2492 would mandate cancelling their registrations, H.B. 2492 does not run afoul of § 10101. (Mot. at 27.) Defendants cite no authority for this assertion. The Court agrees with Plaintiffs that the cure provision of H.B. 2492 does not warrant dismissing the § 10101 claim. (See USA Opp’n at 15–16.)

1 right of action, rendering their claims at least plausible. (See AAANHPI Opp’n at 16 n.14
2 (citing Davis v. Commonwealth Election Comm’n, No.: 1–14–CV–00002, 2014 WL
3 2111065, at *10 (D. N. Mar. I. May 20, 2014)).) While the United States addresses 4 Private Plaintiffs’ allegations regarding H.B. 2492, Poder Latinx additionally alleges that 5 H.B. 2243 violates § 10101(a)(2)(A), which prohibits election officials from “apply[ing] 6 any standard, practice, or procedure different from the standards, practices, or procedures 7 applied under such law or laws to other individuals within the same county . . . who have 8 been found by State officials to be qualified to vote[.]” (Poder Latinx Compl. ¶¶ 100–06.)
9 Poder Latinx has plausibly alleged that County Recorders are “instructed” to apply a 10 different “standard, practice, or procedure” to verify the eligibility of voters suspected of 11 being noncitizens. (Id. ¶ 102.) Only suspected noncitizens, investigated under broad, 12 potentially discriminatory criteria, will be subjected to allegedly unreliable database
13 checks and risk erroneous cancellation of their registrations. (Id. ¶ 103.)

14 5. Voting Rights Act

15 Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act (“Section 2”) prohibits states from enacting 16 voting rules that “result[] in a denial or abridgement of the right of any citizen of the 17 United States to vote on account of race or color.” 52 U.S.C. § 10301(a). In evaluating an 18 alleged Section 2 violation, courts must consider “the totality of circumstances” in each 19 case and whether “the political processes leading to nomination or election in the State or 20 political subdivision are not equally open to participation by members” of a protected 21 class “in that its members have less opportunity than other members of the electorate to 22 participate in the political process and to elect representatives of their choice.” Id.
23 § 10301(b). “The essence of a § 2 claim . . . is that a certain electoral law, practice, or 24 structure interacts with social and historical conditions to cause an inequality in the 25 opportunities of minority and non-minority voters to elect their preferred 26 representatives.” Brnovich v. DNC, 141 S. Ct. 2321, 2333 (2021) (cleaned up). “[T]he 27 judiciary provides the only meaningful review of legislation that may violate the Voting 28 Rights Act.” Feldman v. Arizona Sec. of State’s Office, 843 F.3d 366, 369 (9th Cir.

1 2016).

2 When assessing a claim of discriminatory results under Section 2, courts consider 3 the extent of any historical discrimination burdening the right to vote, the degree of 4 racially polarized voting, and the severity with which discrimination restricts the class
5 from voting. See Thornburg v. Gingles, 478 U.S. 30, 36–37 (1986). LUCHA Plaintiffs 6 allege that the Voting Laws disparately burden Native American, Latino, and language-7 minority voters by placing “barriers to registration [causing] impacted individuals to be 8 wholly barred from voting.” (LUCHA Compl. ¶¶ 367–69.) For example, as above 9 detailed, LUCHA Plaintiffs assert that a disproportionate number of San Carlos Apache 10 Tribal members will be unable to provide DPOR not because obtaining adequate proof is 11 a “mere inconvenience,” but because many Tribal members do not live in a residence
12 with one address recognized by the State. (Id. ¶¶ 28–40); c.f. Brnovich, 141 S. Ct. at 2338
13 (“Mere inconvenience cannot be enough to demonstrate a violation of [Section] 2.”) 14 Arizona also has a history of disenfranchising Native American citizens. (Id. ¶¶ 164–69, 15 176–77.) LUCHA Plaintiffs additionally allege that naturalized citizens, a 16 disproportionate number of whom are members of protected racial classes, will be subject 17 to unwarranted disenfranchisement and criminal prosecution due to the Birthplace
18 Requirement and the State’s use of faulty databases to verify citizenship. (Id. ¶¶ 367–70.)

19 Defendants respond that LUCHA’s Section 2 claim does not plausibly detail any 20 “meaningful disparate racial impacts” and “depends enormously on speculative racial 21 disparities that may not occur as anticipated, or indeed may not occur at all.” (Mot. at 4, 22 29 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).) But Defendants’ attacks on the 23 Section 2 claim depend on evaluating the merits of the claim, which the Court will not do 24 at this stage of litigation. And Plaintiffs need not plead any “specific set of factors” to 25 state a claim of Section 2 violation. Sixth Dist. Of African Methodist Episcopal Church v.
26 Kemp, 574 F. Supp. 3d 1260, 1277 (N.D. Ga. 2021) (citing Brnovich, 141 S. Ct. at 2336, 27 2340). Plaintiffs have met their burden to plausibly allege that Arizona’s voting process is 28 not “equally open to participation” from, inter alia, Native American voters who will not

1 be able to obtain DPOR. LUCHA Plaintiffs have stated a claim that the Voting Laws 2 violate Section 2.

3 III. CONCLUSION

4 The Court concludes that Plaintiffs have standing to bring this action. Further, the 5 Court finds that Plaintiffs have stated plausible claims for relief, apart from any alleged 6 “freestanding” procedural due process violation.

7 IT IS ORDERED denying Defendants State of Arizona and the Arizona Attorney 8 General’s Motion to Dismiss except as to Plaintiffs’ freestanding procedural due process 9 claims (Doc. 127).
