PLAINTIFFS' BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON DECLARATORY JUDGMENT CLAIM

For the reasons explained herein and in Plaintiffs' accompanying Motion for Expedited Briefing, Plaintiffs ask the Court to grant summary judgment on Plaintiffs' declaratory judgment claim and issue a declaration defining "address," as that term is used in Wis. Stat. § 6.87(2), in advance of election day to clarify what information satisfies that statutory term and ensure that Wisconsin voters are not arbitrarily and unlawfully disenfranchised.

INTRODUCTION

The 2022 general election is less than a month away, absentee voting has already begun, and yet the rules governing absentee ballot witness certificates remain murky. The term "address" as it pertains to the requirement that a witness certify an absentee ballot and provide name and “address” (the “Witness Address Requirement”) is undefined in the operative statute. No court has interpreted that term. And evidence shows that there is widespread confusion about how local election officials should do so, leading clerks across the state to apply varying meanings—untethered to any statutory language, official guidance, or other authority—with varying results in terms of whose ballots will be counted and whose will be rejected.

This is a problem of recent origin. Until now, every statewide election in Wisconsin since 2016—including the August 2022 primary—has proceeded according to Wisconsin Elections Commission (“WEC”) guidance instructing local election officials on how to handle a “missing” witness “address.” That guidance stated that an absentee ballot certificate containing sufficient information to enable an official to discern the witness’s complete address requires no further action from the voter to be counted. But after another circuit court enjoined a different portion of that guidance (while making clear the injunction was not meant to disturb WEC’s interpretation of the term “address”), WEC removed the entire guidance document from its website and issued a communication stating that it was “invalidated” and had “been withdrawn.”

Defendant WEC and Intervenor-Defendant the Wisconsin Legislature both took the position in this litigation that a temporary injunction was unnecessary, contending that the prior WEC guidance nevertheless remains in place, defining witness “address” to mean street number, street name, and municipality. According to WEC and the Legislature, then, Wisconsin’s election officials have everything they need to correctly and consistently apply the law. But new developments and new evidence refute these claims and demonstrate the urgent necessity of this Court’s prompt and definitive resolution of this matter.

Start with WEC's own apparent lack of clarity about the meaning of "address." Last Friday, WEC's counsel represented to another Dane County circuit court that a witness address need not necessarily contain a street number, street name, and municipality to satisfy the statute. Even setting aside this remarkable about-face and accepting WEC's and the Legislature's argument that the WEC guidance documents remain in effect, no party argues that WEC's interpretation binds local elections officials (and WEC has explicitly said it does not).

Nor can any party credibly dispute that clerks across Wisconsin are inconsistently interpreting the Witness Address Requirement. To take just one data point, out of 21 local clerks' offices surveyed—from Ashland and Onalaska to Janesville and Milwaukee—fifteen reported that they are requiring a five-component address (street number, street name, municipality, state, zip), and are either returning or requiring correction of noncompliant certificates. Right here in Dane County, several municipalities report that they are requiring a five-component address and returning ballots that do not satisfy these criteria. It is no wonder that no party has argued that the rules about witness addresses will be settled beyond dispute on election day.

These developments make two things clear. First, only a declaration by this Court defining witness "address" can end this confusion and inconsistent application of Wisconsin election law. And the factors the Court must consider in interpreting the statute all favor Plaintiffs' proposed definition: a "place where the witness may be communicated with." This definition (Merriam-Webster's first definition of the term) is consistent with the rest of Section 6.87's text and its purpose, the language of closely related statutes, the applicable canons of construction, and the rules of interpretation laid out in the Elections Code. Second, that declaration must come soon, before clerks begin to count absentee ballots on November 8. Thus, while Plaintiffs submit that their definition of “address” is the correct one, they above all else seek definitive resolution of this straightforward question of statutory interpretation. Failure to definitively resolve this matter before the November 2022 election is the worst possible outcome.

LEGAL STANDARD

“Summary judgment is proper where there are no genuine issues of material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Golden Sands Dairy LLC v. Town of Saratoga, 2018 WI 61, ¶16, 381 Wis. 2d 704, 913 N.W.2d 118. The Uniform Declaratory Judgments Act “is to be liberally construed and administered to achieve a remedial purpose.” Olson v. Town of Cottage Grove, 2008 WI 51, ¶42, 309 Wis. 2d 365, 749 N.W.2d 211. “[D]eclaratory relief is appropriate wherever it will serve a useful purpose.” Lister v. Bd. of Regents of Univ. Wis. System, 72 Wis. 2d 282, 307, 240 N.W.2d 610, 625 (1976). A declaratory-judgment claim is also appropriately resolved by summary judgment, particularly when the claim “turns upon a question of law.” Olson, 2008 WI 51, ¶¶ 33,32–39.

STATEMENT OF UNDISPUTED FACTS

The facts pertinent to this motion are few and not in dispute. Under Wis. Stat. § 6.87(2), an absentee ballot envelope must include a printed certificate with a space for a witness to provide their name, “address,” and signature. The term “address” is not defined in this statute. See Wis. Stat. § 6.87; see also Wis. Stat. § 5.02. If the certificate is “improperly completed,” the municipal clerk may return the ballot to the elector “whenever time permits the elector to correct the defect and return the ballot” no later than 8 p.m. on election day. Wis. Stat. § 6.87(9).

In 2015, the Legislature amended the absentee ballot law to provide that “[i]f a certificate is missing the address of a witness, the ballot may not be counted.” Wis. Stat. § 6.87(6d). WEC reported that, during the lead-up to the 2016 election, it received “many calls from clerks asking how the new statutory requirement should be interpreted.” WEC, Absentee Witness Address Corrections, Dkt. No. 4 at 3.¹ After consulting with the Wisconsin Department of Justice, WEC issued guidance on October 4, 2016, which it modified two weeks later. WEC, Amended: Missing or Insufficient Witness Address on Absentee Certificate Envelopes, Dkt. No. 4 at 5. The October 18, 2016 guidance (the “2016 Guidance”) stated that “[WEC] has set a policy that a complete address contains a street number, street name and name of municipality. But in many cases, at least one component of the address could be missing; usually the municipality.” Id. (emphasis added, emphasis in original omitted). The 2016 Guidance then stated that “clerks must take corrective actions in an attempt to remedy a witness address error.” Id. (emphasis in original). In the event a clerk was “reasonably able to discern any missing information from outside sources,” the clerk was permitted to make the correction without contacting the voter. Id. The 2016 Guidance was used by municipal clerks for at least twelve elections, including the August 2022 primaries.

On September 7, 2022, Judge Michael Aprahamian of the Waukesha County Circuit Court enjoined WEC’s use of the 2016 Guidance. White v. WEC, Waukesha County Case

No. 2022-CV-1008, unpub. order (Sept. 7, 2022), Dkt. No. 4 at 7–9 (“White Order”). Under the Waukesha court’s order, WEC was prohibited from “displaying or disseminating” the 2016 Guidance in its entirety. White Order ¶6. The court also barred WEC from “advising, guiding, instructing, publishing or otherwise communicating information to Wisconsin municipal clerks and local elections officials that clerks or local election officials have the duty or ability to modify or add information to incomplete absentee ballot certifications.” White Order ¶8. The Waukesha court expressly declined, however, to decide what constituted an “address” for purposes of Wis. Stat. § 6.87(2). White v. WEC, Sept. 13, 2022 Transcript at 46:24-47:6, Dkt. 4 at 147–48.

A week later, WEC sent out a “clerk communication” concerning the Waukesha court’s order. WEC, Temporary Injunction on WEC Guidance re Missing Absentee Witness Address (White v. WEC, 22-CV-1008) (Sept. 14, 2022).² WEC explained in that communication that the Waukesha court’s order prohibited it from “disseminating or displaying” the 2016 Guidance. Id. WEC also stated that the Waukesha court had explicitly “clarified that it had not ruled on what constitutes a witness address or a missing witness address,” nor had it “overturned the existing WEC definition of address . . . namely, street number, street name, and name of municipality.” Id. In the same communication, however, WEC referred to its prior guidance containing that definition of address as “now invalidated memoranda.” Id. WEC further stated that those memoranda had “been withdrawn.” Id. And WEC removed the documents at issue from its website. See supra n.1.

Plaintiffs subsequently filed this lawsuit raising two claims—one for declaratory judgment against all Defendants, and one for injunctive relief against Defendant WEC only. Plaintiffs requested that the Court clarify the meaning of “address” under Wis. Stat § 6.87(2) and direct WEC to instruct clerks to administer the statute according to the interpretation declared by the Court. Plaintiffs filed a motion for a temporary injunction, which the Court denied on October 7, 2022 after finding, principally, that WEC’s definition in its September 14, 2022 communication—namely, “street number, street name and municipality”—is “the status quo and that the requested temporary injunction is unnecessary to preserve the status quo.” Dkt. 79. The Court’s Order did not address Plaintiffs’ likelihood of success on the merits and did not formally or finally resolve the definition of “address.” See id.

ARGUMENT

Plaintiffs’ declaratory judgment claim and this motion for summary judgment present a straightforward question of statutory interpretation: what does the term “address” mean for purposes of an absentee voter’s witness certificate, in the context of Wis. Stat. § 6.87(2)? This is a pure matter of law. See State v. Hanson, 2012 WI ¶14, 338 Wis. 2d 243, 808 N.W.2d 390 (questions of statutory interpretation are questions of law). For the reasons explained below, “address” should be given its ordinary definition: “a place where a person may be communicated with.” Among other benefits, this construction is consistent with the statute’s overall purpose, which is “to give effect to the will of the electors . . . notwithstanding informality or failure to fully comply with some of [the Code’s] provisions.” Wis. Stat. § 5.01(1). But even more important than how the Court resolves this question and this motion is when it does so. As it stands, local election officials lack clear guidance about how to apply the Elections Code when it comes to absentee ballot witness certifications. They are applying the law inconsistently. Ballots that would be accepted in some municipalities are being returned to voters in others. Only this Court's immediate intervention—before votes start to be counted on election day—can remedy this grave problem.

I. Wisconsin's Declaratory Judgments Act entitles Plaintiffs to judgment on their statutory interpretation claim before the general election.

Plaintiffs seek summary judgment on their claim under Wisconsin's Uniform Declaratory Judgments Act, which strongly favors prompt resolution of disputes such as this. The Act's purpose is "to anticipate and resolve identifiable, certain disputes between adverse parties." Olson, 2008 WI 51, ¶28 (emphasis added). So long as "a controversy is justiciable" "a declaratory judgment action 'is fitting.'" Wis. Mfrs. & Comm. v. Evers, 2021 WI App 35, ¶13, 398 Wis. 2d 164, 960 N.W.2d 442 (quoting Olson, 2008 WI 51, ¶29). And a controversy is justiciable when four conditions are satisfied: "(1) a right is asserted against a defendant who has an interest in contesting it; (2) the controversy is between persons whose interests are adverse; (3) the plaintiff has a legally protectable interest in the controversy; and (4) the controversy is ripe for judicial determination." Id. (cleaned up).

These conditions are all met here and establish why the pure question of law raised by Plaintiffs' motion can and should be resolved before the election. The Act's "purpose is to settle and to afford relief from uncertainty and insecurity with respect to rights, status and other legal relations; and is to be liberally construed and administered." Wis. Stat. § 806.04(12). As detailed in Plaintiffs' contemporaneous filed Motion for Expedited Briefing and the affidavits accompanying it, uncertainty around the definition of a witness "address" has significantly increased the prospects of disenfranchisement of many Wisconsinites if left unremedied. Only a declaratory judgment issued by this Court before the election can fulfill the Act's purpose and afford adequate relief.

First, Plaintiffs assert rights against Defendants interested in contesting those rights—rights which can only be vindicated before ballots are counted. Rise asserts its right to engage in get-out-the-vote activities under the proper construction of the Witness Address Requirement. See Affidavit of Maxwell Lubin (“Lubin Aff.”), Dkt. No. 7 at ¶¶6–11. Mr. Rivera asserts his right to participate in a lawfully conducted general election. See Affidavit of Jason Rivera (“Rivera Aff.”), Dkt. No. 6 at ¶¶5–9. These rights as they pertain to the upcoming midterm election will be extinguished if they are not vindicated before election day. And as the course of litigation has made clear, WEC and the Legislature are keen to contest Plaintiffs’ rights for purposes of the ongoing election. If this Court delays resolution until after the election, WEC and the Legislature will have prevailed on a crucial element of the dispute regardless of the judgment the Court enters.

Second, Plaintiffs’ interests are adverse to WEC’s and the Legislature’s, who are content to let election officials’ widespread confusion persist. Only a decision now—in advance of the election—will adequately resolve the dispute.

Third, Plaintiffs’ legally protectable interests in the controversy spring directly from the pendency of the election. Rise is in the final stage of get-out-the-vote efforts aimed at students who plan to vote absentee. Dkt. No. 7 at ¶¶6, 9–11 Mr. Rivera’s foremost concern, as an absentee voter in this election, is that lawful absentee ballots be counted in this election. Dkt. No. 6 at ¶¶8–9.³

³ To spare the Court repetitive briefing, Plaintiffs do not restate the (so-far-uncontested) arguments that they have standing which were made in the temporary-injunction briefing. Plaintiffs incorporate those arguments by reference. See generally Dkt Nos. 6–7; see also Dkt. No. 8 at 9–12.

Fourth and finally, the controversy is as ripe now as it ever will be. A declaratory judgment action is ripe so long as any relevant facts are “sufficiently developed to allow a conclusive adjudication.” Id. Plaintiffs’ statutory claim presents a pure question of law—there are no facts to develop. And the purposes of the Act will be most served by immediate resolution.

II. Applying Wisconsin principles of statutory interpretation, “address” means “a place where a person may be communicated with.”

The Court should thus decide the merits of Plaintiffs’ declaratory judgment claim and hold that “address,” for purposes of the Witness Address Requirement, means “a place where a person [i.e., the witness] may be communicated with.” See “Address,” Merriam-Webster.⁴ Although the term “address” has several “common, ordinary, and accepted” definitions, Plaintiffs’ proposed definition is consistent with the term’s statutory context, as well as related statutes, and avoids absurd results. In contrast, the definition that WEC and the Legislature have previously proposed in this litigation—“street number, street name, and municipality,” Dkt. No. 76 at 6–7; Dkt. No. 40 at 8–9—finds meager support in dictionaries, and none anywhere else. And, importantly, Defendants’ proposed definition will often require more information that is needed for an election official to know how to contact a witness (perhaps for this reason, WEC’s counsel told another Dane County circuit court judge last Friday that this three-component address is sufficient but not necessary to satisfy the Witness Address Requirement, see Affidavit of Spencer Klein at ¶7). It should be rejected.

Straightforward application of Wisconsin principles of statutory interpretation leads directly to Plaintiffs’ definition of “address.” “When interpreting statutes, [courts] start with the text.” Clean Wis., Inc. v. Wis. Dep’t of Nat. Res., 2021 WI 72, ¶10, 398 Wis. 2d 433, 961 N.W.2d 611. The text of the Witness Address Requirement spans three provisions: Wis. Stat. §§ 6.87(2), (6d), and (9). Section 6.87(2) sets out the “form” of the absentee-ballot certificate, requiring that it include spaces to list the witness’s “Printed name” and “Address.” Section 6.87(6d) explains that if “a certificate is missing the address of a witness, the ballot may not be counted.” And Section 6.87(9) provides that if “a municipal clerk receives an absentee ballot with an improperly completed certificate or with no certificate, the clerk may return the ballot to the elector, inside the sealed envelope when an envelope is received, together with a new envelope if necessary, whenever time permits.”

Unless a statutory term is “specially-defined,” it must be given its “common, ordinary, and accepted meaning.” State ex rel. Kalal v. Cir. Ct. for Dane Cnty., 2004 WI 58, ¶45, 271 Wis. 633, 681 N.W.2d 110. “[S]pecially-defined words or phrases are given their technical or special definitional meaning.” Id. Neither Section 6.87 nor any other provision in the Elections Code defines the standalone term “address,” whether for purposes of the Witness Address Requirement or otherwise. Trump v. Biden, 2020 WI 91, ¶49, 394 Wis. 2d 629, 951 N.W.2d 568 (Hagedorn, J., concurring) (“Although Wis. Stat. § 6.87(6d) requires an address, § 6.87(2) and (6d) are silent on precisely what makes an address sufficient.”); Wis. Stat § 5.02 (Elections Code’s definitions provision).

Accordingly, the Court must give “address” its “common, ordinary, and accepted meaning.” Kalal, 2004 WI 58, ¶45. Because “address” has several definitions, compare “Address,” Merriam-Webster, with “Address,” Oxford English Dictionary, “the applicable definition depends upon the context in which the word is used,” Kalal, 2004 WI 58, ¶49. As Kalal explains, “statutory language is interpreted in the context in which it is used; not in isolation but as part of a whole; in relation to the language of surrounding or closely-related statutes; and reasonably, to avoid absurd or unreasonable results.” Id. ¶46. In addition, the Elections Code furnishes two relevant interpretive canons. Wis. Stat. § 5.01(1) provides that the Code “shall be construed to give effect to the will of the electors, if that can be ascertained from the proceedings, notwithstanding informality or failure to fully comply with some of [its] provisions.” And Wis. Stat. § 6.84(2) provides that Sections 6.86, 6.87(3)–(7), and 9.01(1)(b)(2) and (4) must “be construed as mandatory” notwithstanding Section 5.01(1).

Applying these principles, the “common, ordinary, and accepted meaning” of address is “a place where a person may be communicated with.” See Merriam-Webster, “Address.” This construction is most consistent with (i) the Witness Address Requirement’s context, (ii) the language of closely related statutes, and (iii) the canon against absurdity. Further, the Witness Address Requirement’s definition of address is subject to Section 5.01(1)’s presumption in favor of enfranchisement, which favors Plaintiffs’ construction.

Witness Address Requirement’s context. Context establishes that the Witness Address Requirement exists to help clerks identify and contact witnesses, and that the requirement is satisfied so long as the address provided achieves that purpose. “A statute’s purpose or scope may be readily apparent from its plain language or its relationship to surrounding or closely-related statutes—that is, from its context or the structure of the statute as a coherent whole.” Kalal, 2004 WI 58, ¶49. Here, the “coherent whole” is Section 6.87, the Elections Code provision that sets out absentee voting procedures. The key procedure involving the witness is as follows: the voter (i) exhibits the ballot “unmarked to the witness,” then (ii) “mark[s] the ballot and enclose[s] and seal[s] the same” in the certificate envelope in the presence of the witness. Wis. Stat. § 6.87(2). Then, after completing those steps, the voter and witness both fill out certifications. Id. The space to add the witness's name and address appears immediately after the witness certification, which reads as follows:

I, the undersigned witness, subject to the penalties of [the false-statement statutes], certify that I am an adult U.S. citizen and that the above statements are true and the voting procedure was executed as there stated. I am not a candidate for any office on the enclosed ballot (except in the case of an incumbent municipal clerk). I did not solicit or advise the elector to vote for or against any candidate or measure.

Id. The “voting procedure” in question is the two steps just described, while the “above statements” are those made by the voter in her own certification.

The straightforward inference from this context is that the Witness Address Requirement exists to further the same purpose as the certification it immediately follows—namely, to ensure that the ballot was voted (i) by the voter, not another person, (ii) in a lawful manner, and (iii) without coercion or undue influence by the witness or anyone else. The witness's address is useful to clerks because it gives them a way to contact the witness if any of those three requirements becomes the subject of dispute. This textual context establishes that a witness address satisfies the statute's requirements so long as clerks can ascertain, from the available information, where the witness may be communicated with.

Language of closely related statutes. Examining related statutes bolsters Plaintiffs' reading. Most pertinent is Wis. Stat. § 6.34, which sets out the requirements for proof of residence by military voters. Section 6.34(3)(b) requires that identifying documents used for such proof include a “complete residential address,” which it defines as “a numbered street address, if any, and the name of the municipality.” Section 6.34(3)(b) uses the phrase “complete address”—not just “address”—to refer to street number, street name, and municipality. If “address” necessarily entailed all those components, “complete” would be surplusage. That cannot be right—“[s]tatutory language is read where possible to give reasonable effect to every word, in order to avoid surplusage.” Kalal, 2004 WI 58, ¶46. Further, Section 6.34(3)(b)’s interjection of the qualifier “if any” after “numbered street address,” suggests that even a “complete” address will sometimes lack one or two components, because sometimes no “numbered street address” will exist.

Plaintiffs’ construction of the Witness Address Requirement harmonizes Section 6.87 with Section 6.34. It is not plausible that the legislature used the phrase “complete residential address” in one statute to refer to something identical to—or, in some circumstances, less than—what it meant to include when it used a different term (the unadorned single word “address”) in another, related statute. Cf. Trump, 2020 WI 91, ¶42 (Hagedorn, J., concurring) (noting the “stark contrast” between Sections 6.87 and 6.34(3)(b)). Defendants’ interpretation, on the other hand, would land the Court in precisely this interpretive rut: leaving “complete address” and “address” with identical definitions, despite the former having specific components identified in the law and the latter having none.

Canon against absurdity. The three-component definition of address also leads to absurdity and significant problems of administrability, where Plaintiffs’ definition does not. Administering Plaintiffs’ definition simply requires that clerks apply similar standards to those they have adopted for the last six years. By contrast, if the Court adopts the three-component definition, the implication will be that a witness fails to include an “address” in the following circumstances, among others:

- When a witness who is the voter’s spouse or family member lists an address of “same,” “see above,” “ditto,” or an equivalent—although the witness’s complete address is just above where the witness has signed.
- When a resident of a senior apartment identifies his address by his room number at Attic Angels or Capitol Lakes, without providing a street address.

- When a university student lists the name and room number of her residence hall, but no street name or number because that is how mail is processed on her campus.
- When a witness omits a street number because none has been assigned (e.g., after new construction), and instead uses coordinates or landmarks.
- When a witness omits a municipality because her address is on a street that shares the name of the municipality (for example, Como Road in Como, or Elroy Street in Elroy).
- When a witness omits a municipality because her address is on a street that is immediately familiar to nearly all residents of the municipality (for example, Mifflin Street in Madison).
- When a witness omits a municipality but the street name is unique to a single Wisconsin municipality (for example, Moen Valley Road in Black Earth, Mc Bride Road in Maple Bluff, or Darn Republican Street in Chetek).

Under any reasonable interpretation, the witness in each of the above hypotheticals has satisfied the requirement to provide an “address.” Only Plaintiffs’ definition avoids the absurdity of a contrary holding, and a result in which lawful voters are disenfranchised because a third-party witness address does not conform to some rigid and arbitrary standard (and one that is not found in, let alone required by, any provision of the Elections Code). By putting the focus on the address’s function in the statutory context—to permit communication with the witness, if needed—Plaintiffs’ definition accounts for these and other situations that the three-component definition does not.

Presumption in favor of enfranchisement. Section 5.01(1)’s rule of construction provides a further reason to adopt Plaintiffs’ definition of “address.” That section instructs courts interpreting the Elections Code to construe statutes so as to “give effect to the will of the electors . . . notwithstanding informality or failure to fully comply with some of [the Code’s] provisions.” Wis. Stat. § 5.01(1). Insofar as the Court determines that “address” is ambiguous, Section 5.01(1) means that it must be construed in favor of counting absentee voters' votes. Plaintiff's definition best achieves that goal.⁵

III. Regardless of how this Court defines “address,” immediate declaratory relief is available, appropriate, and necessary.

As detailed in Plaintiffs' Motion for Expedited Briefing and the affidavits filed contemporaneously with that motion, the withdrawal of WEC's 2016 guidance and removal of that guidance from WEC's website has resulted in widespread confusion among local election officials throughout Wisconsin regarding what constitutes a witness “address.” Mot. for Expedited Briefing at 4–6. The practical result of this confusion and lack of clear guidance is that clerks in many municipalities are instructing voters that their witnesses must include details (such as state and zip code) that no party before this Court has argued are required. Id. Clerks in some municipalities are wrongly returning ballots lacking those components—which would be deemed sufficient and counted by clerks in other municipalities, and which would have been deemed sufficient in the August primary—to voters for correction. Id. at 5. And there is significant concern that clerks will face challenges on and after election day to absentee ballots that do not contain specific witness address components that have not been required for at least the past six years.

Some voters may be able to cure any issues concerning the witness address certification on their ballot before election day. See Wis. Stat. § 6.88. But many will not have that opportunity. Time is rapidly dwindling, and only this Court can provide a binding definition of “address” to quell the current confusion and prevent disenfranchisement of Wisconsin voters. Accordingly, no matter how the Court ultimately resolves the statutory interpretation question at the heart of this case, a declaratory judgment in advance of November 8 is urgently needed. Even if the Court were to disagree with Plaintiffs’ proposed definition and instead adopt the definition proposed by WEC and the Legislature, a declaration interpreting the statute as such would provide Plaintiffs with some of their requested relief (at a minimum, relief from uncertainty), give local elections officials statewide desperately needed clarity and a binding definition of “address” on which to rely, and head off inevitable disenfranchisement of lawful Wisconsin voters by clerks applying a different, more stringent definition of “witness address.” See Wis. Stat. § 806.04(10) (providing that the purpose of the Uniform Declaratory Judgments Act, is “to settle and to afford relief from uncertainty and insecurity with respect to rights, status and other legal relations”).

⁵ Section 6.84(2)'s narrow interpretive carveout does not apply to the definition of address. That section provides that “notwithstanding [Section 5.01(1)],” Sections 6.86, 6.87(3)–(7), and 9.01(1)(b)(2) and (4) must “be construed as mandatory.” Of the three provisions that constitute the Witness Address Requirement, only Section 6.87(6d) is on that list. And that provision concerns only the remedy for a missing address, not the initial requirement of an address. Because the definition of address is an antecedent question to anything in Section 6.87(6d)'s scope, it falls under Section 5.01(1)'s pro-voter rule.

Thus, regardless of how the Court interprets the statute, it can—and should—do so now.

CONCLUSION

For all of the reasons explained above, the Court should grant Plaintiffs summary judgment on their declaratory judgment claim, declaring as follows: “address,” as the term is used in Wis. Stat. § 6.87(2), means “a place where the witness can be communicated with,” and a witness certification is valid if a clerk can determine where the witness can be reached. The Court should further declare that otherwise-valid absentee ballot certificates are not “incomplete” for purposes of Wis. Stat. § 6.87(9) if they contain sufficient information to determine where the witness can be communicated with. In any event, for the reasons set forth herein and in Plaintiffs' concurrently filed Motion for Expedited Briefing, whatever meaning of "address" this Court declares, it should do so as soon as possible, and in advance of election day on November 8.

Declaratory Judgment
Case No. 22-CV-2446
Case Code: 30701
Honorable Juan B. Colás

AFFIDAVIT OF SARA MEYERS

STATE OF Texas)
COUNTY OF Harris)

I, Sara Meyers, being duly sworn, depose and say:

1. I am over the age of 18 years of age and competent to testify to the facts set forth below. I make this affidavit on personal knowledge of the facts and circumstances set forth herein.

2. I am a strategy and operations executive working as an independent contractor. I have thirteen years of experience in operations, strategy, and data with a focus on strategic planning and performance-metric development, including the collection, management and analysis of large datasets.

3. One of my clients is the Elias Law Group (“ELG”).

4. On Friday, October 14, 2022, as part of my contract work for ELG, I conducted an analysis of publicly available data regarding the rejection rates of Wisconsin absentee ballots. Specifically, my objective was to generate a list of Wisconsin municipalities sorted by ballot-rejection number and rate to attempt to identify jurisdictions that may be rejecting absentee ballots in the 2022 election at noticeably higher rates than Wisconsin's last general mid-term election in 2018.

5. I acquired the data for use in my analysis by accessing the Badger Voters website (<https://badgervoters.wi.gov/>) via a link on the on the Wisconsin Elections Commission's website. I selected two datasets for purchase: the 2022 general-election absentee dataset and the 2018 general-election absentee dataset. I then accessed the combined dataset for these two years through an account on the same website.

6. I used the 2018 general-election dataset as the baseline dataset because, like 2022, 2018 was a midterm election year.

7. In order to identify the shares of 2018 and 2022 absentee ballots that had been accepted or rejected, I created two flags.

8. First, I created a flag for absentee ballots that had a "ballot status" of "returned." That category already existed in the datasets when I received them.

9. Second, I created a flag for absentee ballots that were, in my assessment, potentially rejected. No existing category in the dataset covered such ballots, so I created one by combining two preexisting categories. The first category included all ballots with a "ballot status" of "not returned, sent to voter." The second category included all ballots with a "ballot status" of "returned, to be rejected" and a "ballot reason type" that was related to certification. I created a flag combining these two categories and several specific subcategories based on my understanding that some municipalities use the first when a ballot is returned to a voter for correction, while others use the second.

10. Using the flags just described, I created a table listing one municipality per row, with four columns: 2018 ballots returned, 2018 ballots potentially rejected, 2022 ballots returned, and 2022 ballots potentially rejected.

11. I then generated three further columns: a column listing the percentage of returned ballots that were potentially rejected in 2018, a column listing the same percentage for 2022, and a column listing the change in rejection percentage from 2018 to 2022.

12. I sorted the table to list at the top those municipalities having both a high raw number of rejected 2022 ballots and a high rejection rate for 2022 returned ballots.

13. That table is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

14. I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.
